Residents unite against vandalism

The Zero Vandalism Committee and 60 Arlington Heights residents declared war on local vandals Tuesday night.

"I would like to sit up here and say vandalism is happening all across the country but not in Arlington Heights," said committee Chairman Mae Zimmanck. "But I can't say that. It's happening here and it's happening now."

The committee members suggested a three-pronged attack on property destruction and urged citizens to donate $5 per family and several nights a year to chaperone children.

MRS. ZIMMANCK recommended the problem be approached in schools, homes and churches.

"But," she added, "parents must be made to realize they're ultimately responsible for vandalism."

The committee has proposed a hotline for residents to report acts of vandalism, programs for children Friday and Saturday nights and discussions in churches and schools.

Residents shook their heads in amazement as Mrs. Zimmanck told of $17,000 damage done to Dunton School and other damage at parks.

MOST OF THOSE present said they were victims of vandalism.

Most also wrote checks to the committee for $5 to fund vandalism programs and offered to donate their time later in the year. Checks can be sent in the mail to P.O. Box 751, Arlington Heights 60005.

One concerned resident, Jan Niemeyer, 828 S. Mitchell Ave., said she was there because her daughter's fourth grade classroom was damaged.

"She was very sad about it and upset," Mrs. Niemeyer said. "The fish were killed and she couldn't understand why. I'm here because I think if everybody pitches in we can change things. I'm here because I care."

Mrs. Zimmanck suggested residents contact local school and park board members so that schools and parks can be kept open on weekend nights.

"The limit to what we can do with this is up to us," Mrs. Zimmanck said. "We have to decide whether we want to live with vandalism or do something about it."

Omni-House to get $33,000 from village

Funding of Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau has been set at $33,000 by the Arlington Heights Village Board, despite objections from three village trustees who voted to stop all funding of the counseling center.

The appropriation is a compromise between the $43,500 originally requested by Omni-House and the village administration's recommendation of $20,300.

The village had sought a list of persons from Arlington Heights served by Omni-House before approving funding, but Omni-House officials refused on the grounds the information was confidential.

THE $33,000 appropriation will allow the agency to continue providing the same level of services, Peter Digre, executive director of Omni-House, said. Digre said he had hoped to hire another full-time staff person.

Opposition to funding Omni-House came from Richard Durava, Robert Miller and O.V. Anderson.

The main supporters of Omni-House were Trustees Frank Palmatier and Alfred Barboro.

Palmatier also asked the board to allocate $4,600 to Omni-House to pay for the costs of relocating the counseling center's Arlington Heights office last year. The motion was defeated by a 5-4 vote, with Village Pres. James T. Ryan casting the deciding vote.

FIRST LADY Rosalynn Carter stops to wave to several hundred Northwestern University Medical School students upon her arrival at Northwestern's Psychiatric Institute in Chicago. Earlier, Mrs. Carter predicted that her husband's energy policy would cost him popularity.

Carter may lose popularity: wife

SEVERAL HUNDRED students from Northwestern University Medical School demonstrate Tuesday to tell Rosalynn Carter they are unhappy about a $2,505-a-year tuition increase at the medical school.

From Herald news services

Rosalynn Carter expects her husband to lose some popularity because of the energy sacrifices he is asking people to make but she said Tuesday if Americans trust the President and the government they will respond.

"The energy situation is critical," she said. "We have to do something about it."

Mrs. Carter told reporters before Carter outlined the nation's energy problems in a televised address Monday night, she and staff members went over the speech with him line by line and suggested some changes.

SHE SAID SHE told Carter, "how he could say it so I could understand it and if I could understand it, everybody else can."

Mrs. Carter was in Chicgo Tuesday to preside over a three-hour meeting of the President's Commission on Mental Health and to tour the Institute of Psychiatry at Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

She said, as honorary chairman of the commission, she will take an active role in preparing a report on the nation's mental health problems for the President and thinks by focusing attention on the problem she can help more American families deal with their emotional crises.

A highlight of her Chicago trip was a tour of an unusual psychiatric hospital whose patients include the "Gold Coast" rich, skid row winos and residents of a black housing project.

The Northwestern University Psychiatric Instiute has no bars on the windows and nurses dress in street clothes.

SINCE THE institute receives federal funds, it must treat anyone who asks for help from a surrounding area encompassing 167,000 persons. That territory includes the "Gold Coast" along Chicago's lakefront, a skid row slum west of the loop and the large Cabrini-Green housing project.

Several hundred Northwestern medical students were on hand to protest a 57 per cent tuition increase at the medical school — a hike that they say will result in higher doctor bills and fewer physicians in places where they are needed most.

"Mrs. Carter is concerned with the quality of health care in this country, and increasing tuition here is going to further the elitism of the medical profession," explained Nathan Beraha, a member of the medical school's student senate.

The students want Mrs. Carter to investigate the university's use of federal funds in light of a $2,505-a-year tuition increase at the Northwestern Medical school. Tuition is being raised from $4,350 a year currently to $6,885. The increase makes Northwestern the third most expensive medical school in the country.

"STUDENTS ARE BEING laden with debts of $20,000 to $30,000, and as a result are forced to go into lucrative private practices instead of providing primary health care to the people who need it," said Ralph Harder, a freshman at the medical school.

Large tuition debts lead to higher prices for medical services and also work against physicians who might want to practice in doctor-starved rural and inner city areas, Harder said.

Middleclass and lower-income families will be unable to send their sons and daughters to medical schools with high tuitions, Beraha said.

35 Congressmen get preview of 'tough' energy plan

from Herald News Service

President Carter gave members of Congress a preview Tuesday of tax plans that might add 57 cents a gallon to gasoline prices by 1988 and other tough energy conservation measures that could change the life of every American.

Carter's proposals, outlined in a White House briefing by energy adviser James Schlesinger, won bipartisan praise mixed with forecasts of extreme controversy.

"It's a tough problem and he's going to have trouble selling it to both Congress and the American people," Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., said. "But from the figures used, I'm convinced it's absolutely necessary."

Schlesinger's congressional briefing provided the first official view of what Carter will propose today. Members of Congress said after the briefing that the plan included:

- Authority to boost gasoline taxes by a nickel a gallon during each year from 1979 through 1981 in which consumption increased by 1 per cent or more, plus authority to add another nickel during each year from 1982 through 1987 in which consumption did not decrease by 2 per cent. Carter's goal is to cut gasoline consumption by 10 per cent in the next decade.
- A tax to raise the price of so-called "old" domestic crude oil from $5.25 per barrel to $11.28 by 1979, a move that would add another 7 cents per gallon to gasoline prices no matter what happened to consumption and also would drive up consumer costs of other petroleum products. After 1979, all domestic oil would be allowed to rise to meet the world price.
- Tax rebates, which Schlesinger did not describe, designed to return revenues from the oil and gasoline taxes to low-income Americans. The tax revenues from the higher gasoline levies alone could total $57 billion a year by 1988.
- Setting a price ceiling of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet for all natural gas, and extending federal price controls to the presently uncontrolled gas produced and sold within the same state. Prices on some intrastate gas would be rolled back from levels of more than $2 as existing contracts expire.
- Placing a tax on gas-guzzling cars, but offsetting it with a tax rebate for cars that get very good gasoline mileage. Schlesinger did not spell out the size of the taxes or rebates.
- Forced conversion of industries and utilities to coal from oil and natural gas, but phased in over a long period of time so clean-air controls can be installed and coal transportation problems can be solved.
- Tax incentives for home weatherization, new building standards and mandatory appliance standards for energy efficiency.

Aside from widespread hostility to the gasoline tax proposal, which several lawmakers said Congress probably will reject, virtually the only opposition to Carter's plan came from representatives of oil producing states who said too little emphasis was placed on expanding domestic production.

Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., said the proposals would be "for the country, a disaster; for our state, a catastrophic, cataclysmic calamity."

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill urged fellow lawmakers to forsake parochialism in dealing with Carter's energy program, but predicted the controversial plan will provoke "the toughest fight this Congress has ever had."

SENATE REPUBLICAN Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee promised he and other GOP members of Congress "will agree with as much as we can," although he voiced flat opposition to a gasoline tax hike.

Some U.S. lawmakers even said Carter's outline of the fuel supply crisis and his tough measures to cope with it had convinced them to put the energy needs above other concerns of their constituents.

"This will affect tourism adversely, and the production people don't like it," said Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., whose state has both tourist attractions and energy reserves. "But I think I am going to support the President fully, because he is right."

Schlesinger's White House meeting with some 35 Democrats and Republicans, less than half the number invited, set the stage for Carter to announce his entire new policy tonight before a nationally televised joint session of Congress.

Storm lashes area cutting power lines

Spring's first major thunderstorm blew through the Northwest suburbs Tuesday downing power lines and spawning lightning which struck at least three houses.

Area fire departments reported no injuries or major damage as a result of the storm.

Downed power lines shut off electricity on the north side of Schaumburg for about two hours, police said.

The Schaumburg Fire Dept. reported the storm knocked down arching power lines in two places on Schaumburg Road just east of Barrington Road and at the intersection with Meacham Road. Power lines also were knocked down on Golf Road just west of Plum Grove Road.

A small fire broke out at a home at 222 Groel_ner St., Schaumburg, when lightning struck a television antenna setting fire to the set. A small hole was burned into the roof of a house at 116 Treaty Ln., Hoffman Estates, after it was struck by lightning.

Hoffman Estates, Palatine and Rolling Meadows were blitzed with a series of false fire alarms set off by the storm.

Hoffman Estates firefighters answered calls at Conant High School and Lakeview School where the storm apparently had set off alarms. Many persons in Palatine called in to report lightning striking television antennas although fire officials could only confirm a hit to a home at 626 S. Middleton which received only minor damage and no fire.

Illinois State Police reported a total of 14 car accidents during the peak storm hours Tuesday, about three times the normal weeknight accident rate. No serious injuries were reported.

A Des Plaines fire official jokingly said the city's portion of River Road "is living up to its name. At the peak of the storm, it must have had six to eight inches of water standing all across the street."

The water on River Road later drained away, but it may only be for a short time because the National Weather Bureau is predicting more storms and showers throughout the week, possibly ending Friday or Saturday.

Showers are expected to continue today and possibly into the night as temperatures will reach into the upper 70s and fall into the lower 60s tonight.

Thunderstorms and showers also are predicted for the remainder of the week. Temperatures will stay in the 70s during the day and hover in the lower 60s and high 50s during the night.

Athletic Supporter gets no lift from blushing Ma Bell

DETROIT (UPI) — William Berris made Ma Bell blush when he named his new sporting goods store in suburban Southfield "The Athletic Supporter."

The phone company found the name "distasteful" and refused to list the store's number in its information directory — even after Berris paid his $100 deposit and had a phone installed.

Berris claims the stand taken by Michigan Bell is costing him business and violates his constitutional right to freedom of speech. He filed a lawsuit in Oakland County Circuit Court seeking injunctive relief and damages.

JUDGE FARRELL Roberts is expected to decide Friday whether to order the company to begin listing the store's phone number.

Berris, in a telephone interview Tuesday, said Michigan Bell's stand is not consistent. He said he owned a store with the same name in Pontiac that was listed in both the information directory and Yellow Pages for a year and a half.

"You talk about offensive. You pick up any newspaper and they've got advertisements for all these porno movies," Berris said. "If people want to find something offensive, that's the offensive stuff.

MY REASON for using the name is simple," he said. "I handle merchandise that supports athletes — everything from baseballs to table tennis sets. I'm just trying to make an honest living."

Berris' attorney, Eric Rosenthal, said no consideration has been given to changing the name of the store because "we think the principle's important."

Michigan Bell declined to comment on the suit.

Berris said that he first discovered his phone number was not listed three days after opening the store in early March. He said that when he informed Michigan Bell, "The lady told me 'I'm sorry, there must have been a misunderstanding. It'll be in Monday. Don't worry about it'."

BERRIS DID NOT worry about it until nearly three weeks later when a friend came to the store and told him he had been trying repeatedly to reach him by phone without success. It was at that point, Berris said, that a phone company supervisor told him the omission had been intentional.

The supervisor told Berris the name was "distasteful" and violated tariff regulations set by the Michigan Public Service Commission, according to the suit.

"When we told the Public Service Commission, they laughed," Berris said. "They couldn't believe Michigan Bell would take a stand like this."

Bilandic rolls machine to victory

City Dems called to 'join hands'

by KURT BAER

A self-styled "young man from the neighborhood," Michael A. Bilandic, 54, acknowledged victory in Tuesday's Democratic primary election for mayor of Chicago with the humility of an easy winner.

It had been a relatively effortless campaign for Bilandic, a friend and Bridgeport neighbor of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley. Bilandic had avoided debating any of his five challengers as well as any one-on-one interviews with the news media.

At 9 p.m. when Bilandic met the press gathered at the Bismarck Hotel, the returns showed him with 51.3 per cent of the vote. His nearest challenger Ald. Roman C. Pucinski, had 32.6 per cent.

Bilandic,a soft-spoken man, showed no obvious emotion in acknowledging the primary victory.

HE THANKED THE voters for offering him "the highest office within the power of Chicago to give."

At his side, George Dunne, County board president and chairman of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee, called upon Chicago Democrats to "join hands" for the June 7 general election against Republican Ald. Dennis Block.

Bilandic thanked the Daley family for their support in the primary and he praised the late mayor for carrying on what he called "a high standard of government for the past 21 years."

Michael A. Bilandic

Bilandic showed something of the Daley style when asked if he would welcome Pucinski back to the Democratic arty fold. "We never look back. We always look forward," Bilandic told reporters, adding that Pucinski "was never out" of the regular Democratic ranks.

Reporters had only four questions for Bilandic, reflecting what many regarded as a dull primary campaign. One newsman asked the acting mayor if he had started to plan his 1979 campaign yet.

"We take these one step at a time," Bilandic replied.

BILANDIC OFFERED some encouragement for a livelier general election campaign when he said he would square off againt Block. "I do not see any reason not to debate," Bilandic said.

Bilandic was elected acting mayor by the Chicago City Council last Dec. 28, eight days after Daley died of a heart attack. Although he then promised not to run for mayor, Bilandic changed his mind and received the endorsement of the Cook County Democratic organization.

A graduate of De Paul University Law School, Bilandic was encouraged to run for 11th ward alderman by Daley in 1969. He was reelected in 1971 1975. He became chairman of the city council's powerful finance committee in April 1975, and often was seen at Daley's side.

Bilandic is a bachelor and lives with his mother. He has two brothers and a sister.

by United Press International

Backed by the political steamroller Richard J. Daley built, his protege, Michael A. Bilandic, Tuesday night won a Chicago Democratic mayoral primary considered tantamount to victory.

Bilandic has been Chicago's acting mayor since shortly after Daley died Dec. 20, ending his 21-year reign as Chicago's boss.

The 54-year-old corporation lawyer overwhelmed five opponents behind the blitzkrieg charge of Chicago's mighty regular Democratic organization.

BILANDIC'S victory became apparent when he ran away from his chief opponent, Alderman Roman C. Pucinski, in the Southwest Side Polish wards which Pucinski had counted upon.

With 2,838 out of 3,085 precincts counted, Bilandic led Pucinski, 337,670 to 214,983. State Sen. Harold Washington, a black candidate counting on black support, was running third with 71,723, votes and charged "massive vote fraud."

Dennis H. Block, 29, Chicago's only Republican alderman, easily won nomination over three contenders for the GOP nomination to run in the decisive June 7 election.

He defeated George M. Manning, 41, head of an exterminating company;

Dennis Block

Frank R. Ranallo, 69, retired railroad engineer; and Ahmed "Sammy" Rayner Jr., 58, a funeral home owner.

CHICAGO HAS not elected a Republican mayor in 49 years. There appeared to be no signs the civic habit would be changed.

Despite the jammed Democratic primary, John Hanly, chairman of the Chicago Board of Election Commissioners, estimated only 629,340 of the city's 1.61 million eligible voters, or 39 per cent, cast ballots.

A low turnout in Chicago is generally regarded as a good sign for the Democratic organization, called a machine by its enemies.

Bilandic was Daley's handpicked choice to be alderman of Daley's own 11th Ward, the South Side neighborhood which has provided Chicago with all its mayors since 1933.

IN THE FOUR months since Daley's death, Bilandic has referred to his patron as his father figure and pledged to be as much like Daley as any man can be.

Since the City Council elected him acting mayor, Bilandic has sought to govern in Daley Style. He also quickly abandoned a promise made then not to seek the remaining two years of Daley's term in his own right.

Pucinski, 57, was one man who professed to believe Bilandic's promise. A former newspaper reporter and congressman, Pucinski was the first to announce for the race. A longtime Daley loyalist, Pucinski had hoped to combine his own strength among Polish voters with the inroads Washington might make in black South Side wards.

Poles constitute Chicago's largest white ethnic group and blacks represent well over 40 per cent of the metropolitan population. But Pucinski failed to carry many Polish neighborhoods outside his 41st Ward and Washington charged vote fraud.

Waukegan mayor upset by Morris

Democratic state Sen. Bill Morris, 31, upset Republican Mayor Robert V. Sabonjian, a 20-year incumbent, in Tuesday's mayoral election in Waukegan.

Morris, elected to the Illinois Senate in 1974, got 9,538 votes to Sabonjian's 8,863.

During the campaign, Morris charged Sabonjian, often called the Richard J. Daley of Waukegan, was head of a Republican "machine" that intimidated and harassed his supporters. Sabonjian denied the charge.

Morris was a leader of the state Senate's Crazy Eight, a group of independent Democrats who formed a bloc to resist the "Daley machine's" domination in the legislature.

Sabonjian, 61, a former Democrat, is well known for his hard-nosed stand toward rioters in the mid 1960s and his firing of 57 striking policemen in 1970.

Newcomers in municipal victories

by TONI GINNETTI

Mayoral newcomers, including a woman in Mount Prospect, an old guard candidate in Wheeling and a police detective in Des Plaines, led the victory parade Tuesday in the area's municipal elections.

New mayors and village presidents were elected in four of the seven communities choosing new chief executives while three incumbents headed off challenges to win reelection.

The victors included:

• Attorney Carolyn H. Krause in Mount Prospect, who will succeed retiring two-term Mayor Robert D. Teichert;

• Wheeling Trustee William Hein, who had served on the village board since the scandal-scarred years of the early 1970s and whose entire slate soundly defeated a reform ticket;

• Des Plaines Police Det. Herbert Volberding, who emerged as a victor from a field of seven mayoral candidates that included Acting Mayor Charles Bolek;

• Palatine Trustee Robert J. Guss, the Republican party candidate who defeated independent Trustee Fred H. Zajonc;

• Hoffman Estates Pres. Virginia M. Hayter, who out-distanced two opponents to win reelection;

• Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek, who ran unopposed;

• Inverness Pres. Russell Puzey, who also ran unopposed.

MRS. KRAUSE'S victory in Mount Prospect came over two trustees also vying for Teichert's seat, Michael H. Minton and Edward B. Rhea Jr. Mrs. Krause, chairwoman of the village zoning board, becomes the second woman mayor in the area, joining Mrs. Hayter in Hoffman Estates.

In Wheeling, a 52.6 per cent plurality carried Hein and his Wheeling Citizens Party ticket to a resounding victory over two opponents, Trustee Otis L. Hedlund and Edward Fox.

Hedlund had been elected two years ago as part of a reform ticket along with Trustee William Rogers, who also was defeated for reelection Tuesday.

Hein, who was aligned with the village's past political leaders, won on the strength of condominium and townhouse voters following a bitter campaign with Hedlund.

IN DES PLAINES. Volberding outpolled six other candidates to win the seat left by long-time Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, who retired in August.

Volberding's opponents included Bolek, the acting mayor; former Asst. Fire Chief David Wolf; and a city sanitation department truck driver, Walter F. Cloutier.

Volberding will assume the full-time mayor's post at a salary of $32,500 a year.

The Republican party held strong in Palatine as voters gave GOP standard-bearer Guss a 2,359 to 1,844 vote victory over independent Zajonc. Guss will succeed out-going GOP Pres. Wendell Jones, who chose not to seek a second term.

Mrs. Hayter, a Republican, easily out-distanced Democrats Charles J. DePaul and Irene L. Petke to win a second term in Hoffman Estates. She garnered 1,887 votes to 482 for DePaul and 63 for Mrs. Petke.

Constitution doesn't bar spanking students: top court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, by a one-vote margin, ruled Tuesday that nothing in the Constitution bars public school teachers from paddling unruly students.

"A single principle has governed the use of corporal punishment since before the American Revolution: teachers may impose reasonable but not excessive force to discipline a child," Justice Lewis Powell wrote for the five-man majority.

"The basic doctrine has not changed. The prevalent rule in this country today privileges such force as a teacher or administrator reasonably believes to be necessary for the child's proper control, training or education."

The majority decided the 8th Amtndmtnt's prohibition against "cruel and unusual punishment" does not apply to schoolchildren, because they are not restrained behind bars, like prisoners and because actions in a school are open to public scrutiny.

JUSTICE BYRON White, in a dissenting opinion joined by Justices William Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and John Stevens, said:

"I . . . take issue with the extreme view of the majority that corporal punishment in public schols, no matter how barbaric, inhumane, or severe, is never limited by the 8th Amendment."

But Powell said a teacher who uses "excessive" or "unreasonable" force is subject to possible criminal or civil penalties.

The majority also ruled students are not entitled to prior notice or a procedural hearing on their offense before being spanked.

Twenty-one states have authorized moderate use of corporate punishment in public schools, Powell said. "Where the legislatures have not acted, the state courts have uniformly preserved the common law rule permitting teachers to use reasonable force in disciplining children in their charge."

But school district officials here discourage it

Area school officials said they discourage the use of corporal punishment in school and a Supreme Court decision favoring corporal punishment will not change their minds.

Some school districts have policies prohibiting the use of corporal punishment.

The Supreme Court Tuesday decided the U.S. Constitution does not prohibit teachers from physically punishing students.

"We have a long-standing policy that corporal ppunishment not be used," said Bill Warner, High School Dist. 214 assistant superintendent. "We think there are better ways to handle discipline."

RICHARD KOLZE, High School Dist. 211 superintendent, said although the Dist. 211 discipline policy is "silent" on corporal punishment, its use is not encouraged. "It's never been a big issue here," Kolze said.

Prospect Heights Dist. 23, Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and Des Plaines Dist. 62 prohibit the use of corporal punishment.

In Mount Prospect Dist. 57, it is not outlawed but "we discourage it because there are more proper ways to handle these things," said Dwight Hall, assistant superintendent for instuction. "We encourage our staff to work cooperatively with parents."

Don Strong, superintendent of Arlington Heights Dist. 25, said corporal punishment is "avoided, never used except as a last resort in rare and unusual cases."

TEACHERS AND prinicpals in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 are not allowed to punish a child physically unless parents are called in advance.

In River Trails Dist. 26, Supt. John Fridlund said corporal punishment is prohibited unless a parent sends a note that says corporal punishment can be used.

"Not too many parents send notes like that," Fridlund said.

In Palatine Township Dist. 15, the opposite approach is used with parents. If parents do not want corporal punishment used, they must send a note to be kept on file saying so, said Lorita Langley, assistant superintendent for special services.

HOWEVER, MRS. Langley said use of corporal punishment is "definitely discouraged" and many restraints are written into the discipline policy to make sure it is used only when everything else has failed.

'Our policy does differentiate between corporal punishment and physical restraint to keep a child from hurting someone else or himself," Mrs. Langley said.

According to the policy, a principal has to be notified if corporal punishment is going to be used or has been used. A second professional staff member must be present when the punishment is administered.

Thompson prison plan Friday

Lincoln likely to house inmates

by STEVE BROWN

Gov. James R. Thompson is expected to announce Friday he will convert a state mental health center in Lincoln into a prison in an effort to ease overcrowding in other Illinois penal institutions.

Thompson's aides confirmed a decision on the prison situaton has been made, but refused to release details. Sources close to the efforts to ease the overcrowding, however, pointed toward Lincoln as the facility that will be used.

The decision to use the Lincoln Annex, 160 miles southwest of Chicago, as a minimum security prison is expected to blunt Kane County citizens' protests over a proposal to convert several juvenile detention centers into institutions for adult inmates.

THE GOVERNOR'S over-all plan is expected to move adult men into Lincoln, consolidate women's corrections at Geneva and use the facilities at Dwight, which is used for women, for men inmates more than 50 years old.

Illinois Dept. of Corrections Acting Director Charles Rowe confirmed the decisions have been made.

"I spent several hours with him and he has chosen to announce them later," Rowe said.

Rowe said he concurs with Thompson's decision. The Walker administration holdover originally had suggested using the Valley View facility, which is located in Kane County near residential areas, as the speediest way to ease prison overcrowding.

THOMPSON PRESS aide James Skilbeck said the governor is expected to be more sensitive to the objections raised by residents around Valley View.

He said there were objections to using the Lincoln mental health facility, one of two in the Logan County community, but many residents realized the facility was being closed and there would be a major economic impact because of lost jobs.

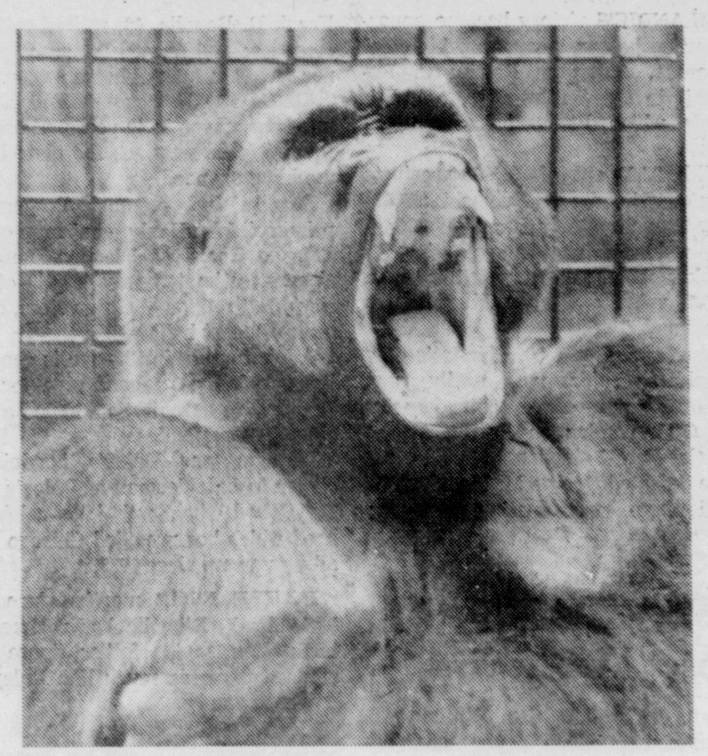
The governor is expected to limit his upcoming announcement to short-range prison plans, but he and Rowe are studying a variety of proposals for building new prisons in the state.

Thompson had planned to announce his short-range prison plans several weeks ago, but objections raised by the Kane County residents lead him to look for other alternatives.

Thompson attended two public hearings in Kane County and Lincoln to listen to citizen concerns about using juvenile and mental health facilties as prisons.

The governor is expected to submit his decision as a legislative recommendation, according to Gayle Franzen, Thompson's liaison with the corrections department.

Sue Pack, head of the Kane County Concerned Citizens Committee, remained wary of the governor's plans and promised the group was ready to go to court if necessary to block changes in the "status quo" with Kane County correctional facilities.



YOU KNOW HOW it is when spring comes. You want to get out, move around, get some exercise after being cooped up all winter. That may be what Frank, an 11-year-old gorilla at Chicago's Lincoln Park Zoo, has in mind as he stages a kind of one-gorilla demonstration.

Appraiser accused of smuggling art

Perry T. Rathbone, a former director of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and recently appointed an appraiser by a Chicago museum, was accused in court Tuesday of being involved in a smuggling scandal. Rathbone was appointed by the George F. Harding Museum in Chicago as an appraiser. But Assistant Illinois Atty. Gen. Donald G. Mulack charged in Cook County Circuit Court that Rathbone should not be appointed to evaluate the collection of valuable art, armor and antiques housed in the Chicago museum. Defense attorneys were given 10 days to answer the objection.

Mulack said Rathbone appeared before a federal grand jury investigating a charge that the Boston museum helped smuggle a painting, valued at $1 million and belonging to the Italian government, past customs authorities. After the federal investigation, the museum paid a $5,000 fine for illegally bringing the Raphael painting into the country. An Italian art dealer who sold the painting was prosecuted on criminal charges in Italy, according to a complaint filed by Mulack. Rathbone denied involvement in the purchase and said his September 1971 resignation was due to "too many administrative changes."

Dead man keeps union post

A dead man has defeated four live opponents for a spot on the executive board of Local 450 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes and Bartenders Union. Sam Orrico, who died March 25, was one of five male incumbents challenged by a slate of four women in the election Monday for union leadersip posts. Orrico and the other incumbents easily swept to victory by margins of about 5 to 1. Local 450 represents waitresses and bartenders in western Chicago and the western suburbs.

Illinois briefs

Energy proposal concerns governor

Gov. James R. Thompson said he has "grave concerns" about items included in President Carter's proposed national energy policy. In remarks made prior to the Iowa Republican Party's Lincoln Day dinner Tuesday night in Des Moines, Iowa, Thompson said although he favors taking some action regarding energy conservation, the proposed gasoline tax increases will cause problems.

"I am concerned about the effect of the increased taxes on state road revenues," he said. "I am also concerned about the effects of the tax on Midwesterners." Thompson said he is unsure if the tax would be accepted "by the people, by Congress, and even by the governors." He said, however, movement toward energy conservation is necessary. "I think he (Carter) is going in the right direction. Without any action, we would be feeling the full effect of a severe energy crunch in four or five years," Thompson said.

Jackson quits lottery panel

Rex S. Jackson, a Jacksonville stockbroker, has resigned as a member of the Illinois State Lottery Control Board, it was announced Tuesday. The resignation was accepted by Gov. James R. Thompson on March 18. William H. Peltier, chairman of the board, announced the resignation at the board's monthly meeting Tuesday, saying Jackson quit because of "great pressing personal business." Peltier said he will urge Thompson to appoint a Downstate resident because there are already three members of the board from Chicago.

Village board wrapup

Parking lot tax plan rejected

A proposed 10 per cent parking tax at commercial parking lots, including Arlington Park Race Track, was rejected Monday by the Arlington Heights Village Board but will be reconsidered this summer.

The tax, which would raise an estimated $60,000, was opposed by Arlington Park officials who said collecting an extra dime with the current $1 parking fee would cause traffic backups as long as two miles and cause track patrons to park on residential streets. Attendance also would drop, track officials said.

The village board directed the village administration to conduct traffic studies at the race track in June and July to help determine what effects the parking tax may have on traffic backups.

Home rezoning plan approved

Rezoning and preliminary plans for 33 houses on Windsor Drive between Crabtree and Suffield drives were approved Monday by the village board.

The Dearborn Development Co. plans to build the development in two phases with the four-bedroom houses priced at about $110,000.

Bella's Inn expansion OKd

A special use permit allowing James J. Jezierski to expand Bella's Inn, 13 E. Campbell St., was approved by the board.

The expansion will add about 80 seating places to the restaurant, Jezierski said. He has agreed to lease six parking spaces if a parking garage is built in the central business district.

Greco gets basin contract

A $1,087,000 bid from Greco Contractors, Inc., Rosemont, for the construction of a second flood detention basin near Wilke and Kirchoff roads was approved.

Ten bids were submitted for the project, which will be funded through general obligation bonds recently issued by the village.

The bids for the work were much lower than expected because the contractors were given the option of disposing of fill from the basin at a site of their choice, village officials said.

Dist. 59 wrapup

Boundary changes rejected totally

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education voted unanimously Monday to go on record as being opposed to merging, consolidating or otherwise changing the boundaries of the district.

The move follows the resounding defeat of a referendum to form an Elk Grove Township unit school by combining 21 Dist. 59 elementary and junior high schools, Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village and Forest View High School in Arlington Heights under one school board and administration.

The board also voted to reaffirm its basic goal of providing the "best possible quality education for every child in the district within sensible financial guidelines."

Election judges to get $15 extra

Election judges who worked during the April 9 school board elections will be paid an additional $15 this year because of the abnormally long hours they worked.

The five head judges each will be paid $50 rather than $35 and the 40 other judges will be paid $45 apiece rather than $30.

The Dist. 59 board Monday voted to increase the judges' pay after learning that many had worked between 17 and 19 hours because of the unusually heavy voter turnout.

The additional cost of the judges will be shared by Dist. 59, High School Dist. 214, Harper College and the Elk Grove Township school trustees because all used the judges for their elections.

Each district's share will be $168.75, Al Lawson, administrator of business services, said.

Raino elected chief of Dist. 25 board

Nicholas Raino is the new president of the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Board of Education.

Raino, 436 S. Lincoln, was elected board president Monday. Newly elected board members Ruth Grundberg and Marlene Kraybill were sworn in Monday.

A member of the Dist. 25 board since 1972, Raino said declining enrollment, school closings and finances are the major problems facing the district.

"We're going to have to handle the problems one at a time and I hope the community will give us its support," he said. "We're going to listen to the community and try to do what's best for the entire district."

Raino said he would like a long-term plan developed that would close as few schools as possible and restore a balanced budget to the district.

PRACTICE TIME means putting out a real house fire for 19 firefighters enrolled in the State Basic Certified Firefighter Program taught by Arlington Heights fire officials. The class, which included persons from Palatine, Wheeling, Arlington Heights and four other communities, burned down a vacant house at Palatine Road and Windsor Drive in Arlington Heights Tuesday. Supervisor Jerry Leligdon of Arlington Heights said the EPA-approved burning gives excellent first-hand experience to the new fire fighting personnel.

From standardized tests

Dist. 59 tables release of scores

A proposal to publicly release school-by-school scores on the Iowa Test of Basic Skills was tabled Monday night by the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education.

Board member Harold Harvey made the motion to release a building-by-building breakdown on the scores on the annual standardized tests, but board member Sharon Chavoen suggested the matter be tabled until the board meets May 2.

Voting to table the issue were board members Judith Zanca, Emil Bahnmaier, Mrs. Chavoen, Barbara Somogyi and Richard Stamm.

"Parents can go to their child's school and see their child's scores," Mrs. Zanca said. "Comparing scores building by building is not in the best interests of the district."

HARVEY AND board member Paul Kucharski voted against tabling the motion.

Districtwide grade-by-grade scores on the 1976 Iowa tests released by Dist. 59 officials last month showed the district students are slightly below the national average in math skills and reading but are at or above grade level in all five major areas tested.

School officials declined to release scores on a building-by-building basis, saying it would be "unhealthy" to compare schools.

Building-by-building breakdown of Iowa test scores from 1975 show scores varied widely from school to school in Dist. 59. Fifth grade students in one school ranked in the 24th percentile in math skills, while those in another school scored in the 96th percentile.

Students in third through eighth grades annually are tested in five major areas — vocabulary, reading, language skills, work study skills and math.

Scarsdale lights to cost $509,000

Lighting plans for the Scarsdale subdivision in Arlington Heights have received final approval from the village board with the estimated cost of the project set at $509,000.

The plans now must be approved by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation so motor fuel tax funds may be spent for the project. IDOT officials have said the plans will be approved quickly, village officials said.

William Bachem of the village engineering department said bids for the project should be let in May and construction should begin by July 1. The project will take about six months to complete, he said.

INSTALLATION OF new streetlights in the Scarsdale area has been delayed for nearly three years. Scarsdale residents originally objected to the standard aluminum fixtures and sodium-vapor lights proposed by the village administration and then the system selected by a special Scarsdale lighting committee did not meet the state's illumination requirements.

The lighting system planned for Scarsdale is unlike any other street-lighting system in the village. It calls for 175-watt mercury lights with lantern-type fixtures mounted on concrete poles.

The lights will replace a 50-year-old system that requires fuses that are obsolete.

When bids for the original Scarsdale lighting plan were received in 1974 the cost of the project was $393,000. The additional $116,000 now is a result of inflation and a decision to add lights along Arlington Heights Road between Orchard and Grove streets.

Dismissal asked on Laseke suit

The Arlington Heights village attorney Tuesday asked for dismissal of a suit charging the village and the Laseke Disposal Co. with discrimination and price fixng.

The lawsuit seeking to void the village's garbage contract with the Laseke Disposal Co., Arlington Heights, was filed in U.S. District Court last month by the Arlington Heights Apartment Council, a not-for-profit corporation chartered in late 1976.

The suit charges that the contract giving Laseke exclusive rights to operate in the village results in "invidious discrimination, arbitrary rates and price fixing."

VILLAGE ATTY. Jack Siegel, in his petition for dismissal of the suit, contends the village's right to hire only one scavenger service is supported by previous court decisions and that the federal court has no jurisdiction because no federal questions are involved.

The complaint filed by the group of apartment owners charges that the garbage rate structure unjustly affects commercial businesses and apartment complexes by having them subsidize the rates for residential pickups.

JOE MORROW DIRECTS the placement of soil at Arlington Park Race Track as part of a project to build a new racing strip in time for the season opening June 1. More than a million pounds of soil will be moved and mixed before the track is resurfaced. Clay and soil are compacted to form the racing cushion. Morrow, 72, has been landscaping race tracks since 1941.

A BODY BAG containing child victim of hotel fire in Galveston, Texas is carried from ruins of the five story structure.

Fear 22 killed in Texas hotel fire

Fire, apparently the work of an arsonist, flashed through a 60-year-old Galveston, Tex., flophouse, Tuesday, trapping about 40 persons behind sealed windows and doors and forcing many to jump, some on fire, as far as three stories. Medical Examiner E. E. Burke said that of 42 persons to account for, eight were known dead, 13 were hospitalized and 7 survived, leaving 14 persons missing. The search for dead was suspended Tuesday evening and was to begin again at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

"It is very likely we will find all (the missing) inside," Burke said. "We've got eight and we are just on the edge of where the windows were. We hope to God they are not in there. We don't know. We have concrete information five children were lost in one room." Police questioned a man they said was a witness to the arson. Fire official Johnny Rico said the escape doors and windows were nailed shut or blocked off. He said an occupant of the hotel had complained to authorities a year ago that all avenues of escape in case of fire had been sealed.

Twister hits Texas hospital

A line of thunderstorms dropped a slashing tornado on the small West Texas city of Monahans Tuesday. It ripped part of the roof off a hospital and damaged a convalescent center, but injuries were reported to be minor. The texas twister hit Monahans on its west side, then moved to the northeast at treetop level. It damaged a shopping center and about 200 houses. A tornado, possibly the same one, also hit an oil company residential housing area five miles north of the city, causing extensive property damage.

Elaine Martin, a newswoman at KMOM-TV in Monahans, said injuries were light because persons in the hospital and convalescent center were prepared when the storm hit.

Senate agrees to kill rebate

The Senate Tuesday agreed to kill President Carter's $50 per person tax rebate. The action — which came less than a week after Carter requested its demise and only a few hours after the Finance Committee agreed with him — was taken by unanimous consent with only a minimum of debate and only a few senators on the floor. Although the action still must be ratified by an eventual House-Senate conference on the remaining tax bill, the rebate is considered dead.

N.Y. cops hunt 'brunette killer'

More than 50 homicide detectives under the direction of New York's top police investigator were at work Tuesday searching for the killer of four attractive brunettes, a man they say is "definitely very sick." The detectives were summoned by Chief of Detectives John Keenan to search for the killer who has eleuded an eight-month manhunt and struck fear in quiet neighborhoods in the Bronx and Queens sections of the city. The killer uses a wester-style .44-caliber revolver, and seems to seek young brunettes with shoulder length hair. Four of the victims were young women with long dark hair. All but one were gunned down as they sat in parked cars. Two of the killings took place in Queens and two in a section of the Bronx.

Concorde noise hit by British Nearly three out of every four Concorde jets exceed legal noise limits on takeoff from London, a British advisory council said Tuesday. A French official said the roar of the supersonic craft is less annoying than the buzz of a lawn mower. French aviation circles said the noise report was "highly subjective" and denied other claims of fire and explosion hazard in the Anglo-French jet.

The British Noise Advisory Council said 72 per cent of all Concorde departures from Heatherow Airport during the plane's first year of operation exceeded noise limits set for all other commercial aircraft. The group recommended a ban on all Concorde flights at night and said it "considers that the Concorde should not be permitted to operate from an airport where it repeatedly infringes the noise limit of that airport."

Pygmies join fighting in Zaire

Four-foot tall pygmies, armed with bows and arrows, joines Zaire and Moroccan troops in an offensive which smashed through invading forces and surrounded the captured town of Mutshatsa, a government spokesman in Kinshasa said Tuesday. "Pygmies who are part of the Zaire armed forces took part in the advance against Mutshatsha," the spokesman told reporters. "They do not carry guns but are armed with bows and arrows." The pygmies and other government troops have now "encircled Mutshatsha," the former military headquarters own overrun by invaders from Angola and located 78 miles west of the copper mining capital of Kolwezi.

School bus crash kills 11

A school bus plunged down an embankment in mountainous northern Spain Tuesday, killing at least 11 children and the driver. A police spokesman in the city of Orense said 11 of the 35 school children riding in the bus died, and 11 were injured and the other 13 escaped injury. He said driver Manuel Gongalez Perez perished. The pupils, aged 12 to 14, were on a school trip.

Control of pets in Europe often cruel: agency

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Although there is a dog population boom in most of Europe, many Soviet cities prohibit dogs as pets and sanction the shooting of all strays on the streets, a worldwide animal protection sagency said Tuesday.

The World Federation for the Protection of Animals issued a survey on pets in Europe, including the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Hungary as part of its drive to promote pet control laws and establishment of shelters.

The Zurich-based agency said pet restriction is practiced in Austria, Finland, Luxembourg and Scandinavia and in the Soviet Union.

THE AGENCY said there is no law against cruelty to animals in the Soviet Union and "the keeping of dogs is periodically prohibited in many towns and communities and every dog in the street will be shot dead."

"Rabies has become endemic in large parts of the Soviet Union and dogs must be kept on the leash and wear muzzles while being walked."

Such enforcement does not apply to cats, which are the Russians' favorite pets, although buildings are required to have wire mesh windows in attics and basements to keep cats out.

England has the worst problem with six million dogs, 400,000 of which are homeless. The survey said nearly three million dogs are born each year in Britain and that only half are likely to find masters.

"AS A RESULT, hostility against dogs is rising in a country of traditional dog lovers. People object to dogs fouling public places and causing traffic accidents," the agency said.

Another reason for this shift is the growing fear of rabies, which is spreading through France all the way to the English Channel, the federation said.

The agency said France has 200,000 homeless dogs among a total of seven million and in West Germany, there is a need for shelters for the 80,000 dogs abandoned each summer vacation season.

Columbo admits writing dossier on her family

Patricia Columbo admitted during testimony Tuesday she told investigators she wrote a dossier on her slain Elk Grove Village family to help plot their murders.

Miss Columbo, 20, her voice uncertain and her demeanor at times close to tears, made the admission under cross examination by Patricia Bobbs, Cook County assistant state's attorney, during a pretrial hearing in Cook County Circuit Court, Chicago.

Miss Columbo and Frank DeLuca, 39, are charged with plotting and carrying out the May 4, 1976, slayings of Miss Columbo's parents, Frank and Mary Columbo, and her 13-year-old brother, Michael, at their home at 55 E. Brantwood Dr., Elk Grove Village.

MRS. BOBBS questioned Miss Columbo about testimony the defendant gave Friday during a pretrial hearing in Judge R. Eugene Pincham's courtroom, at the Cook County Criminal Courts Building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago.

Pincham is considering a defense motion to suppress statements Miss Columbo gave police after her arrest May 15, 1976.

Police earlier testified Miss Columbo told them she wrote the dossier after she saw Lanyon R. Mitchell, 25, of Lake Villa, at the Elk Grove Village police station after her arrest.

Miss Columbo allegedly gave Mitchell the dossier, which also included photographs of her family and a floor plan of the Elk Grove Village home, to help plot her family's murder.

HOWEVER, MITCHELL, who reportedly backed out of the plot, turned informant shortly after the slayings, police have testified. The names of the other alleged conspirators have not been released.

Mrs. Bobbs asked Miss Columbo whether she said, "All right, all right, I wrote it (the dossier)" after she saw Mitchell at the police station.

Miss Columbo said, "I don't believe I used those words."

Mrs. Bobbs asked Miss Columbo whether she told Det. Raymond Rose, of the Elk Grove Village police, she wrote the dossier.

"Yes, ma'am, I did," Miss Columbo said.

MRS. BOBBS THEN asked whether Miss Columbo told police members of a conspiracy had forced her to provide them with the dossier.

"I believe I did, but I don't believe those were the exact words I used," Miss Columbo said.

Miss Columbo said she did not remember whether she told Rose conspirators had forced her at gunpoint to write the dossier. She also said she did not believe she told Rose she had had sex with members of the conspiracy because she feared for the lives of herself and DeLuca.

The next hearing on the motion to suppress Miss Columbo's statements is at 9 a.m. today in Pincham's courtroom. Mrs. Bobbs is expected to continue her cross examination of Miss Columbo.

Chicago shows have ups and downs

Pauley growing into 'Today' job

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Many have called it a Cinderella story. A homespun girl from Indiana has a short but harried stay in Chicago as the city's first female weeknight news co-anchor and goes on to become the "first lady" of NBC's "Today Show."

But Jane Pauley, 26, and honey-blonde with an easy and friendly way, denies that her's is a fairy tale.

"It beats me," she quips when asked to account for her quick rise to prominence in network broadcasting from being virtually unknown in 1974

as a mid-day and weekend anchor for Indianapolis' WISH-TV.

CALL IT BEING in the right place at the right time. Call it being an attractive and able female in a profession scurrying to pay its dues for having denied women for so long. Call it being lucky that someone recognizes your potential and is willing to give you the chance.

Ms. Pauley is willing to admit that all of those things have contributed to her success, but she wisely is apprehensive about calling herself a prodigy, a hit or a celebrity.

"I've got a lot of growing to do and I'd like to stay on the 'Today Show' as long as I am welcomed. I don't think I'd ever come to a time when I wouldn't get better at doing the show," Ms. Pauley said over a hearty breakfast.

She has an insatiable appetite at 10 a.m. because she has put in nearly a full day's work. Tuesday morning she rose at 3:30 to make a live report from a farm about 30 miles southwest of Chicago on the heartland and farms of the Midwest.

This morning will be the last of a special, three-day broadcast the "Today Show" has been making from the Merchandise Mart studios of WMAQ-TV, the NBC-owned station in Chicago.

"I ENJOY DOING the show from different cities and various locations. It's harder work for us, but I think we're at our best when we do it," Ms. Pauley said.

The broadcast from the farm went well, she said, but her live report from Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry Monday had problems. She made a mistake in feeding a nutrition computer the right statistical information. "Bear with me," she asked the audience, and gave it another try.

"I suffered miserably after that. You've got to decide what to do right away in dealing with your mistake. I wasn't hired to make little mistakes like that," she said.

But the negative balanced the positive. Earlier in Monday's broadcast, she graciously and amusingly covered for "Today Show" host Tom Brokaw, who, after a station break, found himself sitting on his microphone.

Brokaw had no choice but to stand up and adjust his microphone on the air.

"Well, we have to keep the equipment warm," Ms. Pauley quipped. Everyone laughed and the camera crew and producers behind the scenes crowned it a poised way of handling the situation.

The "Today Show" is marked with a spontaneity, youthfulness and freshness in its revitalization.

In the past year, the two-hour morning news show has been redeveloped around the single host, Brokaw, with Ms. Pauley, news-reader Floyd Kalber and weatherman Lew Wood "picking up the slack," she said.

Ms. Pauley does not believe she has been slotted into the woman's news and feature role that news traditionally has given females. "I'm as likely to interview Andrew Young as I am to do a cooking feature," she said.

SHE SAYS SHE IS not uncomfortable with her "Today Show" role. She does not feel intimidated or that she is being upstaged by Brokaw, who does a masterful job of guiding the changing program.

Many television critics feel differently, however. Ms. Pauley has been blasted for being all giggles and lacking important, on-camera experience.

"I don't try to hide my different faces from the audience. If I think something is funny, I will laugh out loud. I can look and act like I'm 12-years-old and at other times I can act dead serious," Ms. Pauley said. "It's just me and it's the only way I know how to operate."

A nationwide search brought her to Chicago in September 1975, where she was teamed with the city's 16-year news veteran, Floyd Kalber, to launch WMAQ-TV's "NewsCenter 5" concept for the 5 and 10 p.m. weekday news.

The initial news show and team did not meet the station's expectations and Ms. Pauley became the target for much criticism.

"I was in the position of being the first female night news anchor in Chicago, a very serious news town. I was an outsider who the people here expected to know their town inside and out and I didn't," Ms. Pauley said.

"That put me at a terrible disadvantage and there were times when I would have traded the job for a hammock strung between two trees I know about back in Indiana," she said.

She could have taken an "I showed 'em" attitude when she won another nationwide search as the female member of the "Today Show" staff in October 1976, filling a void left by Barbara Walters. But, she didn't.

"If I had been able to stop the world then, I would have stayed here in Chicago another three or four years because I was doing things I thought were important. I was learning about the area and street news. If I had that extra time, I think I would have proved my local critics wrong," she said.

"I DIDN'T HAVE that chance and I regret that," Ms. Pauley said.

Chicago was the perfect stepping stone between being an unknown news anchor in Indianapolis and an instant "Today Show" celebrity. She has discovered she really is "a morning person" and not at all inhibited about picking up where Ms. Walters left off.

"I don't have any sense of following in her (Ms. Walters) footsteps. We are two different people," Ms. Pauley said, admitting that there have been comments about their similar voice inflections.

"Barbara Walters came a long way at making it possible for more women to work in front of the camera," she said. "Women my age don't give it a second thought. We don't run into the same obstacles."

Being only one of 25 female network on-the-air journalists does not overwhelm Ms. Pauley. She is not awed with her ability and luck in leapfrogging over men and other females into broadcast prominence.

A severe raking over the coals by critics has not left her bitter. In fact, her Chicago stint this week was a pleasureable homecoming, she said.

"Wherever I work, I tend to make the people I work with my little family. I have many good friends in the newsroom at NBC," Ms. Pauley said.

Kalber, who she followed to the "Today Show" from Chicago, "is a good, good friend who's given me support and even a kick in the pants when I needed it," she said.

She does not consider herself "the new kid" anymore. She is building the confidence, knowledge and camera poise that will take her a long way in the business.

"My potential still outstrips my performance. The time will come when I carry my own weight. My time just hasn't arrived yet," she said. "But, it will."

JANE PAULEY receives an estimated annual salary of $125,000 as the female member of the "Today Show" team. Her quick rise to broadcasting prominence has not overwhelmed the 26-year-old Indiana native who says her current but brief return to Chicago has been a "pleasureable one."

Castro dilemma: troops in Africa or U.S. trade

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — President Fidel Castro, who sent thousands of soldiers to Angola hastily in 1975, finds he must leave his troops in Africa to prop up the Marxist government, according to Western sources, and his dilemma threatens chances for better relations with the United States.

"Angola is Castro's Vietnam," said one Western source who has dealings with the government here.

President Carter has made withdrawal of the 10,000 troops in Africa a condition for lifting the 16-year trade embargo against Cuba, one of the chief goals of the island's Communist leaders. But knowledgeable foreigners said Castro cannot bring his forces home.

CUBAN OFFICIALS again stressed their desire for renewed trade with the United States in a meeting with a group of United States visitors from the Chamber of Commerce in Minnesota — the first such delegation to visit Cuba since Castro took power.

"The Cubans are most interested in knowing when the embargo will be lifted," said Bower Hawthorne, head of the 50-man delegation and vice president of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune Co.

"We can't tell them when the embargo will be lifted, or if it will be lifted. Our people on this delegation favor the lifting of the embargo."

The Cuban leader "desperately needs the return of the technicians who are in Angola with the troops (but) he can't leave without losing face with the Cuban establishment," the Western source said.

THE UNITED STATES "insisting on the withdrawal of troops from Angola as a precondition will stop rapprochement with Cuba," he said. "Cuba won't change its African policy."

"The opposition forces in Angola haven't been liquidated yet," said another foreigner. "If the Cubans leave, (Angolan President Agostinho) Neto might have trouble staying in power."

The United States trade delegates expressed a bit of annoyance Tuesday that the Cubans did not get down to specifics in their two-hour opening meeting at the beachside resort of Santa Maria del Mar, 30 miles east of Havana.

But Hawthorne said he believed the Cuban and the Americans understood each other after the opening session, and further talks will be more productive. The Minnesota group will leave Cuba on Friday.

Western and Cuban sources have said Castro impetuously decided to send troops to Angola in late 1975, 48 hours after several Cuban technical advisers were killed by a South African strike force at a border post held by Neto's Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO ILLINOIS CONSUMERS

5 REASONS WHY BRANCH BANKING ISN'T IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

Once again the Illinois legislature is considering a number of so-called "branch banking" bills. The 991-member bank Illinois Bankers Association, which represents over 80% of the total banks, both large and small, in Illinois and the 326-member bank Independent Community Banks in Illinois, support the "unit" banking structure which has served Illinois consumers and businesses well. Our Associations are opposed to these bills. We feel the public should be aware that many issues arise when assessing the merits of unit vs. branch banking. In that regard, we offer five facts concerning this inter-industry bank structure conflict.

1. BRANCH BANKING LEADS TO MONOPOLY BANKING

When states allow branch banking, a reduction occurs in the number of banks and competition decreases. 14 branch banking states now face the situation of five banks controlling over 70% of all banking deposits in their states. Even right now without branching, the four giant Chicago banks hold 57% of the total domestic banking deposits in the Chicago banking market! Illinois' present unit banking system allows for more individual banks (over 1,200), spurs competition and offers the consumer and businessperson the widest possible choice of banking alternatives.

2. BRANCH BANKING WILL COST YOU MONEY

Based on the latest Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation information, bank loan rates are lower in unit banking states like Illinois, while rates paid on savings deposits are higher than in branch banking states. Studies also show that branch banks tend to have higher service charges on checking accounts than do unit banks.

3. CONVENIENCE BANKING IS ALREADY HERE

Illinois has a "facilities" banking law. Facilities are used as banking "convenience centers" and can cash checks, receive deposits, issue drafts, change money and receive payments.

In Illinois a bank can maintain two "facilities," the first within 1,500 feet of the bank's main office and the second within 3,500 yards (about 2 miles) of the main office (this 3,500 yard law was supported by the Illinois Bankers Association and passed in the 1976 session of the General Assembly). Illinois has 1,232 banks, so we have the potential of 3,696 banking offices. To put it another way, if only half of the banks in our state take advantage of the two facility law, then Illinois will have as many bank offices per 100,000 people as the states of California and New York.

Proponents of branching would lead you to believe that if you're not for branching, you're not for convenience. That simply isn't true.

4. BRANCH BANKING HAS NO EFFECT ON THE ECONOMIC GROWTH OF ILLINOIS

There is no evidence that a particular banking structure has noticeable effects, in either direction, upon economic growth. In 1976 a State of Illinois economic growth study, prepared for the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce attributed no importance to banking structure as a determinant of the economic growth of the State of Illinois.

5. UNIT BANKING DOESN'T STOP THE DEVELOPMENT OF ELECTRONIC BANKING

Allegations have been made that those opposed to branch banking have stifled "electronic banking" in Illinois.

This is absolutely not true. First of all, the consumer will, in the end result, determine whether electronic banking is viable and useful. Last year the Illinois Bankers Association played a significant roll in organizing Electronic Funds Illinois, Inc., a corporation which would provide electronic banking capabilities to Illinois banks who, in turn, could provide these services to their customers. 648 banks in the state now are members of Electronic Funds Illinois, Inc.

We are convinced that many key decisions relative to electronic banking have to be made in light of consumer and merchant input and to facilitate that thinking Electronic Funds Illinois, Inc. has established a Consumer Advisory Committee and a Merchants Advisory Committee.

The way we see it

Harper board must heal split

Under ordinary circumstances, the meeting of any board where votes are canvassed and new members are seated is one of the most routine meetings of the year.

This year, however, things haven't been so simple at Harper College. The board president scheduled and cancelled three meetings between Thursday and Monday because there was no quorum. The board was finally reorganized Monday night.

Board Chairman Shirley Munson charged that two of the board members who were defeated for reelection and continuing board member Jessalyn Nicklas were deliberately staying away from the meeting in a "political ploy."

With one other board member hospitalized and another out of town, Mrs. Munson charged the stalling to give Mrs. Nicklas time to try to influence the selection of a chairman.

It's hard to be sure whether Mrs. Munson is correct in her analysis of what happened. It does not seem to make much sense that a delay of just four days could be counted on to tip the scales in favor of one side or another.

It does seem clear, however, that the wrangling over the board chairmanship has accomplished something else — it has split the board more deeply than necessary.

The three new board members who were seated Monday night, Joan Klussman, Janet Bone and David Tomchek, all ran campaigns that were at least somewhat critical of the college administration. Their election was a sign that the public expects a more responsive board that will question the college administration closely.

It would have been possible — and if good sense prevails may still be possible — for the new board members to provide a new direction for the board without destructive infighting.

It is possible, after all, for elected officials to be critical of their administrators, to insist on answers to questions without being "anti-administration."

That distinction between constructive criticism and obstructionism has been lost too often. The current divisions in the board are a good example of how symbolic issues have become paramount.

This year's Harper Board has gotten off to an inauspicious beginning. It will take cooperation and realism on both sides to mend the divisions this hassle has created.

Self-service gas good

"Fill 'er up" will be replaced on May 1, for some motorists at least, by "fill it yourself" thanks to Gov. James Thompson's action legalizing self-service gas stations in this state.

Thompson's order to the state fire marshal will make Illinois one of 48 states to legalize self-service gas stations. And, despite the predictable protests from some gasoline dealers, the consumer seems sure to benefit.

Thompson has estimated self-service gas should be about 1 cent per gallon cheaper than gasoline pumped by an attendant. That will give the motorist who doesn't mind the smell and hassle of pumping gas a break.

Experience in other states indicates that motorists who don't want to pump their own gas will still be able to find attendants to do it for them.

After all, there are times — when you're all dressed up to go to the theater, for example — when only the bravest soul would risk a splash of gasoline on his or her shoes.

But for most of us, much of the time, the savings provided by self-service gas stations will be a welcome option.

Berry's world

"Before we begin, I just want to tell you, I thought some of your itemized deductions were an absolute riot!"

Was this trip necessary?

A two-fisted drinker who dated three-fisted ladies

Jim Bishop

Big John was dressed for a night out. The blue serge suit was pressed, the Harvard-striped tie reposed at the base of his throat. The pointed black shoes gleamed. "I'm taking your mother-in-law to dinner," he said.

"Good luck," I said, without looking up from the sheet of paper in the typewriter. "I must tell you," he said in that hoarse whisper he employed when divulging state secrets, "that woman is damn dense." I looked up. "In the middle of World War II," he said, "she asked her husband if the Japs were on our side."

My old man shook his head. "Dense," he mumbled. "I spent all of one afternoon trying to teach that woman how to play Chinese checkers. She still doesn't know how to jump one marble over the other." "Then why take her to dinner?" "I like her. She's lonely."

MAGGIE USED FACE powder as though she was kneading dough. She was five feet tall and weighed 190. She wore a flowered print in blue and pink, sensible shoes and hair waves that came from a curling iron left too long on a gas range.

The glasses were bought in a five-and-ten. She wept in one eye. The only time she refused a drink was when she misunderstood the question. Not that she drank that much. But when the mood was on her, Maggie had endurance.

"By God, John," she shouted, hugging his vest, "I should have met you 40 years ago." He drove to the Banjo Bar and Grille. It wasn't classy. Barflies had proprietary rights to certain stools.

They sat in a booth. There was a tiny red lamp and an ashtray. Big John hung his gray homburg where he could watch it. They ordered the house speciality — corned beef and cabbage with English mustard.

SHE DRANK GIN bucks. His favorite was Schenley's and ginger ale. They talked of children. And grandchildren. The good old days. The tenderness of the corned beef. The smoothness of the drinks. The cruelties of life. All the friends they had who passed on.

By 11 p.m. he was behind her a couple of trips to the rest room. The bartender kept rubbing his hands and saying "Well, lieutenant. Will that be all?" It wasn't all. "Be a good boy," my old man said. "Bring another round."

By midnight, when he went to the men's room, Big John went two steps forward and one to the side — a creditable cha-cha. Maggie went to the ladies room genuflecting all the way. Then it happened.

The mirror was over the toilet. Maggie was pounding her face with a powder puff. The glasses fell off and shattered in the bowl. She screamed, "Oh, God!" As her mouth fell open, a bridge of four front teeth fell in. In her excitement, she flushed the john.

MAGGIE EMERGED in tears. "My teeth," she moaned, with her hand over her face. Big John patted her hand. "Maggie," he begged, "no crying. I'll take care of this." He walked over to the bar and whispered to the bartender.

The lady, he said, had lost a bridge worth a thousand. The bartender said he was sorry. Big John put on his forgiving smile. "You don't understand," he said. "Call a plumber early and have him dig those thousand dollar teeth out."

"Dig?" the man said. "That costs money, lieutenant." My old man reached over and patted his shoulder. "You have no exit light in this dump," he said. "The kitchen is infested with cockroaches. See your liquor license? Expired. You also forgot a food handler's license.

"Now if you want to make it difficult —." The bartender sagged. "We'll dig," he mumbled. Big John took Maggie home. "Don't worry," he said as he left her at the door. "No lady is going to lose teeth on my night out."

IN THE MORNING he had a hangover in four natural colors. He bathed and shaved and wondered why a two-fisted drinker such as himself always invited three-fisted lady drinkers out to dinner. He went back to the Banjo Bar and Grille.

The plumbing in the ladies room had been torn up. Two diggers were in back. One-third of the backyard looked like a war trench. "We have the thousand-dollar teeth, lieutenant." The bartender sprayed the four pitiful rabbit's teeth with a garden hose.

"There seemed to be no way out. Big John shook his head in sorrow. "That's one reason why I'll never remarry," he murmured. "The damn women lie in their teeth." . . .

The answer man

Carter an improvement pitfall-wise

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Answer Man has been keeping an eye on the new tenants of the White House and is here today to report how the Carters are getting along at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

QUESTION: President Carter now has been in office for almost 13 weeks. What is your assessment of the administration to date?

ANSWER MAN: The President is doing very well avoiding the pitfalls of the office. He hasn't fallen down the steps of Air Force One. He hasn't put the White House police into comic opera uniforms. He hasn't picked up Amy's dog by the ears, and he hasn't called any businessmen S.O.B.'s within the hearing of reporters. That's an improvement over the last four people to hold the job.

QUESTION: But sir, those are all things he hasn't done. Doesn't he have any plusses on his record yet?

ANSWER MAN: Certainly. He cut off King Hussein's allowance. He put "Ruffles and Flourishes" into mothballs. He got the fireplace working in the White House, and he advised government workers to stop living in sin.

QUESTION: But what about the big problems — foreign relations, the energy shortage, the economy and all the rest?

ANSWER MAN: In the area of foreign affairs, he is having some problems. The Arabs and Israelis say they can't figure out what he is talking about and the Russians claim he is operating a shell game without a peanut. Henry Kissinger, on the other hand, claims to understand everything that is going on, but is saving it for his book.

However, he has taken decisive steps in the energy field. You will recall that winter, which began during the Republican administration, now has been brought under control without the expenditure of federal funds. Later this week, he will announce summer is coming.

As for the economy, Mr. Carter ended the slump in the cardigan sweater industry and another member of his family has personally created a boom in the cultivation of malt, barley and hops and the manufacturing of metal containers.

QUESTION: While we are on the subject of the Carter family, what is your view of permitting Amy to attend state dinners and read a book at the table?

ANSWER MAN: Leave the kid alone. When Jimmy turned down the thermostats, the place got so cold that the dining room was the only place you could sit down to read a book without mittens on. Besides, fourth-grade homework is more interesting than the conversation at those White House dinners.

QUESTION: Mr. Carter wants to sell the presidential yacht. Does that mean he won't be taking summer evening cruises on the Potomac?

ANSWER MAN: Not at all. Vice President Mondale has been directed to requisition some surplus inner tubes and a tire pump. Wilbur Mills will be asked to come out of retirement to teach marine navigation on the Tidal Basin.

QUESTION: The President has been going to considerable lengths to keep in touch with the people. How do you view his innovation of conducting public telephone call-in programs and attending town meetings?

ANSWER MAN: It's all very well for him, but it's going to be hell on Answer Men. We're thinking of picketing the White House.

Tomorrow . . .

Two views on catnapper

I would like to respond to The Herald's April 19 article about "An unusually cagey catnapping caper."

The Johnsons are quoted as saying "they love cats . . . they have had eight . . . Oliver was the fifth to disappear." If the Johnsons love their cats so much, why do they allow their cats to roam? It is irrelevant whether or not their cats stay out long or roam very far, these cats are their responsibility and they should not be allowed to run free where they can do possible damage to surrounding property. In addition, if their cats have not been spayed or neutered, they will increase the pet population which has already bursted at the seams.

When their first cat disappeared, that should have told them to keep a close watch on their pets, but instead of heeding that warning, the Johnsons chose to watch the successive disappearance of four additional cats before they finally woke up and decided not to allow their remaining cat, Baby, out the door. Mrs. Johnson also says "why risk an animal's life because you have a neighbor like that." Mrs. Johnson, you were taking great risks with all of your pets when you allowed them to roam the neighborhood. They could have been hit by a car, kidnapped, or mistreated by uncaring people. If Mr. Ridgeway had not caught your animals, you would have continued to let them roam.

Mrs. Johnson says "she's angry . . . and that she never knew that the cats bothered Mr. Ridgeway." This is a flimsy excuse to let her animals run loose. It's common courtesy and respect that one neighbor should have for another not to let their animals, children, etc., do as they please on another person's property. Mr. Ridgeway respects the Johnsons property because he has taken steps to build a fence for his dog.

He should have taken the animals he caught to the police instead of abandoning them. This will not prevent irresponsible and ignorant people from buying pets, it will just make it extremely torturous for those animals to survive on their own.

I hope the Johnsons have learned something from this experience. Caring for a pet is an enormous responsibility. You must see that your pet is well-fed and healthy and you must also set up guidelines as you would for your children to insure that they respect other people's property, even though your neighbors might not openly complain. Your pets cannot determine what is right or wrong, that is why they need the guidance of humans to set them straight, but in this case, it would seem that the humans are the ones that need the guidance.

OUR FAMILY READ the article about "catnapping" in the April 19 issue with a sinking feeling in our hearts. Last summer we took in a 3-year-old stray after she had had three stillborn kittens under our back porch. Our teen-age daughter took the cat to the vet for a check-up and later for an operation, so she wouldn't have any more kittens. We loved her and took care of her. "Lady" had a collar with tags, but on March 31 she got outdoors without it. She never came back.

Our 10-year-old son, who has an allergy to dogs but not cats, called to her each morning and searched for her after school. We checked with neighbors and were told three of the smaller children chased our gray Lady into some bushes a block north of us. That is the last we heard of her. We live on Birch Lane.

Mr. Ridgeway lives a block north of us on Willow Lane. This man lures dumb animals into his garage with food, taking advantage of their ignorance to catch them. Mr. Ridgeway, you are a cruel man, not an honest one. They come into your yard because you "invite" them with food, not just by chance.

Cat lovers, help us to change this man. If he loves animals like he says, he should leave them free. They won't "stay" in his yard. If you have our cat, we want her back Mr. Ridgeway.

Words of praise

THE ARTICLE ON March 10 by Debbie Jonak about the Children's Dental Service providing service to children in the area in need of dental care was greatly appreciated.

Our group of volunteers who work with the Cook County Department of Public Health depends not only on our recent relocation but also the fact that the public is aware of the facility and its care.

If there are any further questions on eligibility or appointments, we urge people to call the Cook County Department of Public Health, 298-5800.

Bill to help credit unions reach big time in competing with banks

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Credit Union, thought of popularly as an office or factory source of small loans, is about to burgeon into a big league financial operation.

Both houses of Congress now have approveda bill giving credit unions powers to compete with commercial and savings banks and federal savings and loan associations.

The credait union movement already has grown significantly since the 1930s when it began to provide loans for and savings banks and federal savinsg and loan associations.

The credit union movement already has grown significantly since the 1930s when it began to provide loans for workers who couldn't qualify for bank loans and did not want to pay the rates of 21 per cent per annum and up charged by the standard small loan firms.

THERE NOW ARE 34 million members of credit unions and their total assets are $45 billion, enough to make them look like formidable rivals even to the American Bankers Assn.

In fact, the ABA waged an unsuccessful fight in Congress to curb the growth of the unions and also has appealed to the courts to halt them.

The bankers particularly were aroused two years ago when the federal regulatory agency, the National Credit Union Administration, began a pilot program allowing local credit unions to set up a form of interest bearing checking accounts called share drafts. After the ABA sued, the NCUA said it would move before next May 1, to set up a permanent share draft program.

Prodded by Herb Wegner, managing director of the Credit Union National Assn. and vice chairman of the Federal Electronic Funds Transfer Commission, a number of states already have passed laws to broaden the services credit unions can offer their members. Laws to this effect have just been passed or are pending in Maryland, Idaho, Indiana, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Washington and West Virginia.

THE FEDERAL bill that seems certain to give the credit unions a big leg-up in their rivalry with other financial institutions was introduced in the House by Representatives Henry Reuss, D-Wis., and Fernand St. Germain, D.-R.I., and was passed 401 to 4 on March 1.

It went to conference with a Senate bill, sponsored by Sen. William Proximire, D-Wis., and others, to extend regulation Q, which empowers the federal government to set interest rate ceilings for various types of lending institutions.

It seemed certain that by the time the bill comes up for final passage it will represent a big prospective leap forward by the credit unions.

In its present form the bill would:

- Allow federal insurance of demand deposits at state chartered credit unions.
- Allow credit unions to issue preauthorized credit to individual members, like first arranging your loan then going out and choosing an automobile to buy.
- Allow credit union home improvement loans to run as long as 15 years.
- Remove the present limitations on the amounts of individual unsecured loans.
- Allow credit unions to write 30-year first mortgages on one to four family houses provided the borrower has his chief residence on the premises.
- Allow ordinary insecured or secured personal loans to run up to 12 years.
- Allow federal insurance and guaranties for many credit union loans.
- The bill also would liberalize the types of investments credit unions can make and would allow them to buy other credit unions.
- Credit unions would be allowed to offer their members different rates of return on their shares and deposit certificates for different maturities and deposit classifications.

Longshoremen end five-day walkout

Longshoremen returned to containerized cargo docks at East and Gulf coast ports Tuesday after a five-day strike against major cargo shippers. International Longshoremen's Assn. Pres. Thomas Gleason said a new contract could be reached without further job actions. The current ILA contract expires Sept. 30, and Gleason was asked if he thought further job actions could be avoided in negotiations to achieve a new pact. "I do believe that, yes," Gleason said.

Gould tells record earnings

Gould Inc., Rolling Meadows, Tuesday announced record sales and earnings for the first quarter ended March 31. Net earnings increased from $11.2 million a year to $21 million. Sales reached $377.4 million, compared to $203.9 million last year. Earnings per share rose 13 per cent to 87 cents compared to the 77 cents reported in the first quarter of 1976. Gould chairman William T. Ylvisaker said sales and profits rose in each of the company's major business areas: electrical, battery and industrial.

Martin tools to be honored

Ernest Martin, president of Martin Tool Works Inc., will receive the 1977 Illinois Small Business Award at an April 21 ceremony. Jack Smith, district director of the Small Business Administration, will present the award at the Martin plant, 3320 Tollview Dr., Rolling Meadows. Participants will include Len Sherman, materials manager for Argonne National Laboratory, who recommended the Martin company to the SBA for production of components used in computer-assisted machines.

Bill tightens jobless benefits

Legislation to tighten standards for Illinois unemployment compensation benefits has been introduced in the Illinois General Assembly with the support of five business groups. House bill 1790 and Senate bill 1155 would slow the drain on the Illinois Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund, supported by employer taxes. Underfunding of the trust fund has forced the state to borrow more than $700 million from the federal government to keep up with benefit payments.

Len Day, labor relations specialist for the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday said the legislation is supported by his association and the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn., Illinois Manufacturers Assn., Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry and the Associated Employers of Illinois. The drain on he trust fund has forced employer tax rates up by an average 400 per cent since 1975, and several thousand per cent for some individual firms, Day said.

UOP net income rises

UOP Inc., has reported net income for the first quarter of 1977 was $7,996,000 or 70 cents a share, compared to $4,337,000 or 38 cents a share for the same period in 1976. Income from continuing operations reached $6,436,000, or 56 cents a share compared to $1,871,000 or 17 cents a share in 1976. Gross revenues for the quarter totaled $178,994,000 compared to $141,767,000 a year ago.

James V. Crawford, president and chief executive officer, reported profit improvements in UOP's petroleum and petrochemical, construction, chemical and plastics lines of business. UOP Inc. also announced an increase in the regular quarterly dividend to 15 cents from 12½ cents a share. It is payable June 24 to shareholders of record June 3.

DeSoto has record quarter

DeSoto Inc., Des Plaines, has reported record first quarter earnings of $3.3 million or 61 cents a share compared with $1 million or 19 cents a share for the same quarter a year earlier. Net sales for the quarter ended March 31 gained 14 per cent to $77.6 million from $67.9 million a year ago. Furniture operations were the biggest contributor to record earnings.

Personal income up 1.7% in March

by LEONARD CURRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Dept. said Tuesday that personal income increased 1.7 per cent in March.

The second biggest income gain on record was another spur to the nation's economy that is growing at the fastest rate in more than a year.

Federal and private economists said the real Gross National Product in the first quarter increased in a range of 5 per cent despite a setback in January when record cold closed factories, slowed transportation and temporarily unemployed more than 2 million workers.

THE COMMERCE Dept. today will release the preliminary figures for GNP, the broadest measure of the nation's economic health. GNP increased only 2.6 per cent in the last quarter of 1976.

The growth this January through March is the highest since the winter of 1976 when it rose 9.2 per cent. It was taken as clear evidence the economy has recovered from the "pause" of the last six months of 1976 that encouraged President Carter to propose an income tax rebate of $50 for every American.

Carter withdrew his support for the rebate last week on grounds that economic conditions have changed for the better.

If cold weather had not adversely affected the economy in January, the first quarter growth easily would have crossed into the much higher plane that it is believed to be traveling in April. In the two months since the cold weather slowdown, every economic indicator has rebounded sharply.

The latest to show major improvement was the government's estimate of individual's income from jobs, investments, farming, business, Social Security and welfare.

PERSONAL INCOME rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $24 billion in March, second only to the $30 billion increase of June, 1975.

Commerce's chief economist, Courtenay Slater, said "personal income falls in line with other data for March. It was a very good month."

She noted construction started on new homes and apartments at the highest rate in nearly four years, industrial production made the biggest gain in 19 months while factories increased their use of machinery to the highest level in 29 months.

Personal income was estimated at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.486 trillion, the department said. This is 1.7 per cent above the revised February increase of $20.2 billion.

Personal income gained only $1.8 billion in January, a figure that was depressed by the severe winter weather and higher Social Security taxes.

Phone problems prevented

Garbled tones, transmission noise and a host of other problems which creep into the telephone system can be prevented with a new computerized Line Condition Report System installed recently for the Des Plaines and Park Ridge service areas by Central Telephone Co. of Illinois.

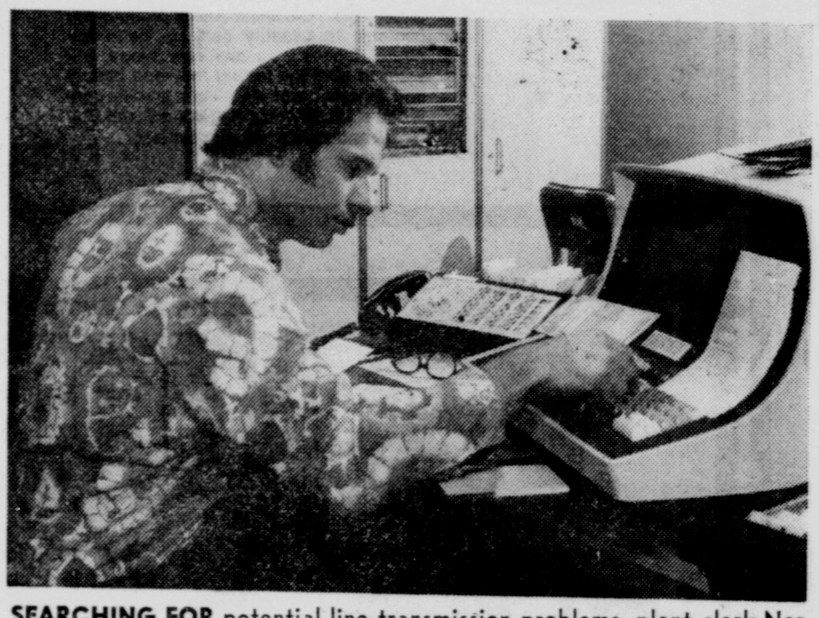
The preventive maintenance installation including cathode ray tube input stations and a computer control center cost $140,000. Line tests are entered in the system by Central clerks at the company's Park Ridge office. Then a display of existing line conditions is shown via a teletype printer.

Tests include identification of improperly grounded transformers and a continuous scan to detect cable malfunctions.

"The Line Condition Report System is the very best system in repair testing that modern technology has to offer," said Jim Kropid, Illinois Division plant manager. "In this industry, no matter how far technology advances, it's virtually impossible to provide telephone equipment that's maintenance free. It becomes our job to identify trouble areas — as best we can with available equipment — and fix these areas as quickly as possible."

Average line testing programs are completed within 30 seconds, Kropid said, adding that line repair testing time has been reduced by nearly 50 per cent.

Coinciding with the inauguration of the report system, Centel relocated 60 repair service employes from 1536 Prairie Ave. in Des Plaines to 36 S. Fairview, Park Ridge.



SEARCHING FOR potential line transmission problems, plant clerk Norman Taylor enters a verification program for Centel Park Ridge offices.

Dow drops; energy plan awaited

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks fell Tuesday for the second consecutive session in moderate trading as traders cashed in on last week's gains while waiting for President Carter to present his energy program to Congress today.

In his televised speech Monday night, Carter advocated a program of "strict conservation" in what he said would be the nation's most urgent crisis, barring war, for the remainder of the century. The program will include a proposed standby gasoline tax hike.

For the second consecutive session, auto stocks were hard hit. The Wall Street Journal said some analysts have recommended selling motor stocks because Detroit would have to make large capital expenditures because of the energy program and this would prevent them from increasing their dividends.

AS A RESULT, the Dow Jones industrial, which fell five points Monday, lost another 3.99 points to 938.77. In the six sessions before Monday, the Dow had climbed 33.03 points, making it vulnerable to profit taking.

General Motors, a 1-7/8-point loser Monday, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, down another 1-3/8 to 66¼. Ford lost 1-5/8 to 55 and Chrysler ½ to 16½ in active trading. GM and Chrysler are Dow average components.

Jewish women struggle to keep heritage alive in the suburbs

by ELEANOR RIVES

(First of two parts)

The group makes up in intensity what it lacks in numbers.

It consists of eight concerned women, led by chairman Janis Silverman, who is not only trying to re-establish her own identity but hopes to influence other women to do the same.

She is concerned because she sees so many suburban Jewish families losing their Jewishness in the process of assimilation, so many unconcerned about their roots and their heritage, so many unaffiliated with a synagogue, uncaring about practicing their religion or preserving traditions in their homes.

The eight caring women belong to a study group called "The Jewish Experience," within the larger group, the Poplar Creek Unit of the National Council of Jewish Women (NCJW). They meet once each month to discuss their present course of study, guided by a workbook by Rabbi Jacob Neusner entitled "Defining Judaism."

THEY DIG INTO Jewish history, both ancient and modern, and compare it with the present. They pore over books, both difficult and delightful, such as the college or graduate level "Understanding Rabbinic Judaism," or the easy and enjoyable "American Judaism — Adventure in Modernity," all written or edited by Neusner.

"You've read the material, now let's discuss the issues," says Janis.

The Silverman family is one of a very small number of Jewish families in Elk Grove Village. Jewish families are more apt to settle in areas where there is a synagogue, such as Beth Tikvah in Hoffman Estates, the Woodfield Congregation in Hanover Park, Maine Township Jewish Congregation in unincorporated Des Plaines, or Chadash in Schaumburg, Temple Chai in Buffalo Grove and Beth Judea in Long Grove. But only a small percentage actually attend.

THE SILVERMANS once lived in Houston Tex., where there was a greater closeness and affirmation of Jewish identity and larger-scale community involvement, despite the fact that Chicago is a city with a much larger Jewish population.

"I felt a great emptiness when we moved here three years ago," said Mrs. Silverman, mother of two preschoolers. "We are so separated from the Chicago community of Jews and from each other; we don't know what's going on — we are so detached. The Jewish community out here in the suburbs fails to provide a sense of history, ancient and modern, who we are, how we got here, an awareness of Jews in other countries."

Janis hopes to make suburban Jews aware of their own changing values, to wake them up a little bit. In every other place she has lived, she has seen a greater percentage of Jewish people practicing their religion.

"IT'S STRIKING that synagogues in this area have such a small membership," she said. "Only a token number of families belong to any Jewish congregation at all. In the ghetto, every Jew met his obligation to support the religious school and the synagogue, but not here. We must tend to our spiritual needs as well as our material needs. We must restructure our priorities."

Another part of Jewish heritage is helping one another. Janis pointed out that many Jews are deeply involved in political and social welfare issues. "This is affirming Judaism in yet another way," she said.

The Poplar Creek Unit of NCJW, for example, supports Shelter, Inc. (temporary foster homes for children); Laubach classes that teach English to foreign-speaking persons; the Ark, a social and welfare agency for Jews in Chicago. Members lend their support to Soviet Jews trying to leave Russia; recently they flooded President Carter with letters urging him not to back down on the human rights issue; they sent numerous protests to Northwestern University officials protesting the employment of a Nazi teacher.

MARILYN RUBEN, president of the Poplar Creek Unit, is also concerned about the loss of Jewish identity, particularly among the children.

"Many families don't try to give their children a Jewish education or background anymore," she said. "If the parents don't care the kids won't care. When I was teaching at religious school, I asked one boy how he felt about his Jewish identity. He answered, 'I don't have any.'

"I think it's the mother's responsibility to give her kids a decent religious education. She should at least observe the traditions in her home."

Janis Silverman is making sure her two little ones understand their heritage and practice religion along with their parents. Her son toddles around the house singing Passover songs. Her daughter, who has gained a certain amount of prestige with the pre-school crowd, passed around matzo pieces for all to try while her mother explained in simplified form some of the Jewish traditions.

JANIS KNOWS HER study course has helped her, and urges more women to form such a group.

"It has made me comfortable with my identity," she said. "I know what's right. I understand my history and what has happened to Jews in this country since they arrived as immigrants."

She pointed out that the American Jewish population is decreasing.

"Through assimilation, through intermarriage, through the low birth rage, Jews will constitute only about one per cent of the population in this country by the year 2000," she said.

"We must preserve our heritage."

"ANYWHERE ELSE I have lived, I have seen a greater percentage of Jews practicing their religion. That's why I'm so concerned and why I'm doing this." — Janis Silverman, Elk Grove Village.

THE PROBLEM: Shall we have an elderly retired rabbi or a newly ordained woman rabbi? Blake Gordon, left, incoming president of the Poplar Creek Unit NCJW, and Adell Rosenthal try role-playing to face real life issues which confront Jews living in contemporary America.

Iran's libbers work to banish veil completely

by CHARLES BERNARD

Forty years ago, Shah Reza tried to ban the chador, the head-to-toe veil worn by Iranian women, by having police forcibly tear them off in the streets.

All he succeeded in doing was to drive an entire generation of women off the streets into the seclusion of their homes.

They stayed there until 1963 when the late shah's son and successor, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, launched a campaign for the emancipation of women. At that time, women's rights were mainly limited to owning property and exercising a degree of authority over their households.

Now women's liberation is well advanced in Iran. Women serve in the cabinet and in parliament and are increasingly welcomed on an equal pay basis in government and business.

In the streets of Tehran's middle-class districts, girls and young women freely exhibit their charms in hip-hugging jeans and tight-fitting sweaters — alongside many thousands who cling to the chador.

LEADER OF THE women's movement is Princess Ashraf Pahlavi, the shah's twin sister who heads the Women's Organization of Iran, started in 1958. The secretary general of the organization is Ms. Mahnaz Afkhami, who is also Iran's first Minister of State for Women's Affairs. She has her office in the prime minister's department.

Ms. Afkhami said Princess Ashraf is determined that Iranian women shall be fully liberated by the end of the first Decade for Women in 1985. She said the goal of the women's organization is to put itself out of business by accomplishing all its objectives by that date.

"We are hoping this will happen, but I think it is a little optimistic, like all of Iran's goals — a little hurried and a little overly optimistic," she said. "But I think it is not a bad goal because one tries harder."

A lot of scene changing already has been accomplished since 1963, when women were given the vote.

Under a family law passed in 1967, and revised in 1975, a man can no longer gain freedom from an unwanted wife legally by simply incanting three times, "I divorce you." Divorce proceedings now follow the traditional lines of the West, with women having equal rights in the legal process.

SINCE 1963, WOMEN also have been allowed to join the judiciary and police force and to serve in the Literacy Corps formed by the shah. They have begun participating in town council and county council proceedings.

Family protection laws have been revised to strengthen women's rights. A social service law assisting women has been passed. Family welfare centers have been opened.

Two women have risen to cabinet rank and 22 recently won elective seats in the Majlis (parliament). The shah has appointed two of them senators among the 30 he chooses in the 60-member Senate.

Ms. Afkhami also cites these gains:

- In the past 20 years literacy among females has increased from 8 to 32 per cent. In the seven to nine age group, the increase has been from 13.5 to 57 per cent.
- The number of higher education graduates among women in the past six years has increased from 305 to 10,396. Girls comprise 28 per cent of all students and 32 per cent of all graduates.
- Five women serve as undersecretaries of ministries, 19 as directors general of ministerial departments, two as town governors and 12 as district governors.
- There are 31 women judges, 30 lawyers and 63 members of arbitration councils, five of them heads of the councils.

Ms. Afkhami said some government officials remain resistant to change and argue, "Oh, there is no use to change the laws because first society should be ready. Its level of eduation should be ready. Its level of consciousness should be ready. Then the laws will come naturally."

"We always say that's not so, that the law in itself will have to be a little ahead of the social outlook, not maybe tremendously ahead, but at least a bit, and it makes a great deal of difference in bringing about consciousness of women and their education," she said.

She's an oil rig roustabout and she likes it fine

by BRUCE NICHOLS

SABINE PASS, Tex. — The cussing stopped when Elizabeth King went to work on an oil company's platform 120 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico. But not for long.

"I tell you one damned thing," she finally told one crewman. "I'll be glad when everybody starts cussing again. I don't know about you, but I miss mine."

Miss King, 48, is not the first woman ever to work on one of the more than 2,000 exploration, drilling or oil and gas production platforms scattered across the northern Gulf.

But she is the first woman offshore roustabout for the Sun Oil Co., and she and her fellow crew members like it fine.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's worked out perfect," said R. B. "Foots" Worster, foreman. "But it would depend on the woman. Long as they carry their end of the load, it don't make no difference to me."

"LIZ WANTS to carry her weight," said operator Mike Burlin. "She works a helluva lot harder than some men."

Miss King went to work offshore in February, after working as an onshore roustabout for another company.

Her duties: checking oil or gas wells, making sure they operate properly, and helping fix them when they falter.

The pay isn't bad. A roustabout gets $7.51 an hour with lots of built-in overtime because crews work seven days on and seven days off.

If a crew is lucky enough to have a good cook, the food is good. But the food can be bad. The water can taste of rust. The work can be stultifyingly boring in stretches. Crewmen can grow tired of the same faces 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Living quarters often include recreation rooms. But it's a lonely life. There's no guarantee a crewman will be rotated ashore on time. The weather can sock in helicopters and boats. Crews occasionally are stuck for days, continuing to work while awaiting relief.

"It was a challenge," said Miss King, who grew up in Mississippi and has worked from New Orleans to California to Alaska.

HER NEW job is the latest in a string of traditionally unwomanly posts she has held since she was orphaned at age 18. In the 1950s, she panned for gold in Alaska.

"I've always done different things for a female, but not just the ordinary things. I like knowing that I'm capable of doing almost anything I make up my mind to do. I like being active, doing physical things.

"I never could fall in line," said Miss King, whose suntanned features and sunbleached hair top a lithe, 5-foot 8-inch, 120-pound figure.

She's no beauty queen, and the male crew members prefer surveying the softer curves of galley hand Sylvia Courville, 23. But Miss King retains an uncommon femininity despite muscles, overalls and boots.

"With this time off, I can do the things I want to do. When I go home from here, I'm rested. After a good bath, bath oil, bath powder, smellin' good again, I'm ready to go."

The things she wants to do include piano lessons, traveling, a boy friend ("I keep a secret so they won't kid me") and even carting cord wood to New Orleans in her new pickup truck.

"There's so many things I want to do. I want to fly. I want to parachute jump. Ever day, I meet the sunrise, and I think, 'Here's a whole new world out there for me today.'

"I'VE BEEN discouraged at times," she admitted. "When I was a little girl, little girls couldn't get jobs in the summer, couldn't even carry out a little old sack of groceries.

"I got up my own job, carrying luggage at the train station.

She came close to getting married once.

"I got to the front porch of the justice of the peace, and I said, 'No, it would be a mistake.' I wanted to do things, and I knew I couldn't do these things if I was married."

And she doesn't feel alone.

"I love being around people. My family's close. Sometimes, out here, I feel a closeness to God I've never felt before. I think the men here like me, most of them like me.

"You get so used to being discriminated against. To come out here, of all places, in the middle of the Gulf, in this strange new field, and to have all these men show all this kindness. It really touched me."

The doctor says

Big drinker blames no sex life on wife

My husband drinks from eight to 10 beers and sips on a bottle of whisky every day. He works six days a week and drinks after work. He also smokes three packages of cigarets a day. Some days he drinks lots more.

We have no sex life and I have heard drinking and smoking would cause a man to lose his desire for sex. My husband says I am wrong, that the reason we have no sex life is because I have had a hysterectomy and that I am no good. He insists that once a woman has this operation she is not a woman anymore.

I do not feel that the operation had any effect on me. Instead I think it hlped and I have more of a desire for sex than before.

This is making me extremely nervous and I find myserlf turning to eating for some satisfaction. Now I am gaining weight which I don't need as I already have high blood pressure.

Your husband needs professional help and soon. You may both need some helpto improve your marriage.

Your husband drinks far too much for his own health. He would be classified as an alcoholic by many. Alcohol is a serious problem. The fourth most common cause of death in the United States in men between the ages of 35 and 54 is cirrhosis of the liver and 60 per cent of these cases are caused by alcohol.

The three packages of cigarets a day significantly increases the likelihood that he will have a heart attack, a stroke or drop dead — and at an early age.

While I can't say what he associates with your hysterectomy, there is no reason such an operation should decrease his normal desire for sex. The removal of the uterus has no significant effect on the vaginal canal or any other aspect of a woman's ability to be a satisfactory sexual partner.

Women react differently to the operation, but there is no physiological reason why a woman should not enjoy sex as much as before the operation. Most women respond as you have. The freedom from the fear of pregnancy often enhances a woman's desire.

Some women state they do not enjoy sex as much after such an operation, but there is usually a psychological not a physiological reason for this reaction.

I CANNOT SAY what your husband's problems really are. What role if any you play in this is also important. He may be drinking and avoiding sex for the same basic psychological reasons. These may be related to fundamental aspects of your marital relationship.

Alcohol in excessive quantities decreases the availability of male hormone. It also decreases a man's ability. Chronic drinking can lead to impotence. If your husband is having an impotence problem, he may be avoiding you for fear of failure. Or he may be drinking because he has an impotence problem to begin with. It is all too complicated to solve without good personal professional guidance

I think you should encourage your husband to seek professional help. He may wish to see his family doctor as a starting place. His habits are harmful to his health and the situation you describe is not normal.

To give you more information on the harmful aspects of alcohol I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whisky, Gin, Bodka, Rum, Wine, Beer. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just write to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Watching salt in diet? This chicken's for you

Dear Dorothy: A friend who knows I have to watch my sodium intake sent me the following chicken recipe. It's so good I thought you might like to try it and maybe use it in your column. Melt a half-stick of unsalted margarine in a large, shallow baking dish. Add to it a chicken, cut into serving pieces, turning each piece to coat with the fat. Then sprinkle regular poultry seasoning on both sides, plus tarragon and garlic powder. Bake, uncovered, for about one hour at 350 degrees, or until done. Then mix one-half cup sour cream with one-fourth cup grated Parmesan, add it to the pan drippings, mix and pour over the chicken. Heat another five minutes. Hope you like it.—Laura Waldner

I do, I do. Even his nibs offered an unsolicited compliment!

Dear Dorothy: About a year ago I bought white venetian blinds with plastic tapes instead of cotton. Now, much to my regret, the tapes are turning yellow. Mild suds haven't helped and I have hesitated using the chlorine solution on plastic. Do you know of anything I can do about this problem?—Mrs. L. B. Graves

Can only tell you that this oten happens to cotton tapes, too. The only thing that might bring back the white color is to sponge with either a sodium perborate solution or one of the enzyme presoaks in solution. It's worth a try, but I have to add the caution that plastic that has yellowed often stays that way. Luck!

Dear Dorothy: Years ago I learned a trick from my mother which has come in mighty handy. I put everything I need on the left side of the mixing bowl and as each item is used, the container or remains (like egg shells) are moved to the right side. I never have to worry on being interrupted that I've forgotten something.—Alice Lamb

Newspaperwoman keynoter for state BPW convention

Foreign correspondent Georgie Anne Geyer, whose syndicated column appears in 70 newspapers across the nation, will be keynote speaker at the state convention of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

The four-day assembly begins Thursday afternoon and concludes Sunday at a post-convention brunch, all events scheduled at the Holiday Inn O'Hare/Kennedy, Chicago.

Geyer will talk at the "Galaxy of Stars" banquet Saturday evening. In the audience will be 1,000 working women from all over the state, representing 170 BPW clubs.

DELEGATES FROM the Mount Prospect BPW include Natalie Hogberg, president, Rolling Meadows; Ruth Avalon, Marian Heniken, Charlotte Shaughnessy, Arlington Heights; Mary Conklin, president-elect, and Ruth Caruso, Norma DiVito, Naomi Dockery and Evie Lovdjieff, Mount Prospect; Dorothy Karger, Des Plaines, Sonja Charness, Roselle; and Betty Bolanos and Phyllis Harris, Schaumburg.

The Barrington Area BPW will be represented by Bernice Rogan, president, Cary; Janet Torrenga, president-elect, and Helene Torrenga, Barrington; Ruth Cody, Palatine; and Rita Cooper, Prairie View.

51 salads to sample

St. Thomas of Villanova Women's Club is promising an array of 51 spring salads for a noon luncheon Saturday in the parish hall, 1141 E. Anderson, Palatine.

Donation is $2.50, at the door or by calling 359-3038 or 358-2659.

A buffet luncheon

The annual spring luncheon hosted by the Women's Guild of St. Paul Church, 144 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, is Wednesday, April 27. The women will serve their homemade dishes from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Tickets, $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children, will be sold at the door. A nursery is provided.

Pick plants, taste tea

The United Methodist Women of the First United Methodist Church, Des Plaines, will host a plant party and tasters' tea at 12:45 p.m. Friday, April 29 in the church Fellowship Hall.

Sandi Karnatz of Northwheel Nursery, Northbrook, will bring house plants, outdoor bedding plants, hanging baskets and pottery to describe and will answer questions about growing them. Part of the proceeds of the plant sale will go to the United Methodist Women for local charities and foreign missions.

At the tasters' tea which follows, guests will sample dessert-type finger foods and a variety of teas.

Tickets are $1.25, available at the church office or from Mrs. Richard Pugh, 827-3273.

The dual event is headed by Mrs. Richard Brosius and Mrs. Peter Flauter, both of Des Plaines.

Today on TV

Diane Mermigas

'Today' team runs smooth show here

It was business as usual for the "Today Show" crew, but Chicago was engrossed.

Rarely is a network program produced in the Midwest between the two elite entertainment coasts.

The fact that NBC's morning news show of 25 years originated from Chicago three days this week is important. Chances are much of Chicagoland was too sleepy-eyed in the early morning hours when the program was being aired to fully appreciate what was going on.

THE TWO-HOUR BROADCASTS from 7 to 9 a.m. since Monday have been filled with short reports on multi-faceted aspects of the city with broad shoulders. Studs Terkel, Chicago crime, the city's black and ethnic populations, Sir George Solti of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Gov. James Thompson, landmarks, museums and Tuesday's Chicago mayoral primary all got a share of the action.

The writers, researchers, directors, producers and cameramen who put their heads together each day following the broadcast to work on the next day's product really did a noteworthy job.

The "Today Show" came across like a well-oiled machine in Chicago.

Where the "Today Show" has provided an in-depth look at Chicago, NBC's late-night "Tomorrow Show" barely plans to scratch the surface of what makes the city tick during its live broadcasts Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next week. Host Tom Snyder plans to broadcast from the Pump Room, a disco and the WMAQ-TV studios, interviewing mainly prominent Chicagoans and celebrities.

"I NEVER SAW Chicago from this side of the clock," said Jane Pauley at the start of the "Today Show's" second hour Monday morning. "The Chicago Bulls lost again. Some things never change."

Floyd Kalber, the show's newcaster who was a night news anchor for WMAQ-TV in Chicago for nearly 17 years, talks to the show's host Tom Brokaw about how Chicago and New York compare with each other.

It is a relaxed, confident air despite the four monster-like television cameras that seem to besiege the studio set and the bright ceiling lights that glare overhead.

BROKAW IS A STEADY navigator of this tight ship, a very professional journalist who is thrown off base by nothing. He became the program's sole host in August 1976 after serving as NBC's White House correspondent and NBC's Saturday night news anchor.

Ad-libbing for the "Today" team seems to flow easily between scripted words and directions.

The man who's responsible for the timing and pace is the program's floor director, transported from the show's home base in New York for the special Chicago broadcasts.

THE FLOOR DIRECTOR works behind the scenes but in full view of Brokaw, Pauley, Kalber and Lew Wood, the show's weatherman and general announcer. Critic Gene Shalit, also a member of the show's on-air staff, didn't come to Chicago.

He's constantly counting off numbers aloud, shooting up fingers to count off minutes silently, holding up directional signs, pointing and darting around the cameras to make sure the proper cut aways are made to station breaks and that the stars of the show are prepared to go back on the air when the commercials are finished.

The technical and on-air crews of the "Today Show" are casual between taped and commercial segments. Then a uniform "Shhh . . ." runs through the WMAQ-TV studios in the Merchandise Mart where the show is originating from while in Chicago and everyone readies himself for the most vulnerable kind of television — the live broadcast.

"I READ THAT ALL wrong, but I have another one coming up," says Wood.

"We have a tease (a stay-tuned ploy) and then a station break next?" Brokaw asks the floor director.

Ms. Pauley adjusts her earphone and asks about when she's supposed to leave for the Museum of Science and Industry where she will make a live minicam report.

That's what the television viewers don't hear, and what they never see is the amount of precise, organized and professional work that goes on behind the scenes to make the show a leader in early morning broadcasts.

Paul Friedman, executive producer of the "Today Show" has a lot to do with that. He is attempting to gradually give the show a new direction and energy with a guicker pace and younger blood line.

Network television kept Chicago in mind this time around. It was nice having the "Today Show" team on our ground and it's nice to know the good people of the Midwest can attract something more than "Evel Knivel's Death Defiers" at the International Ampitheatre in the area of broadcast opportunities.

HIGHLIGHTS:

- "Mysteries of the Great Pyramid" today at 7 p.m. on Channel 2 is a one-hour special, with actor Omar Sharif as host, that explores the enigmas of Egypt's Great Pyramid of Giza. The program in cludes panoramic film of the mystic Egyptian landscape, a cross section of conflicting and controversial theories that explain the construction and purpose of the pyramid, and historic pictures of the 1922 opening of King Tut's treasure-filled tomb.

The special also devotes some time to the recent American obsession with "pyramid power" and comes at a time when the treasurers of King Tut are on display at Chicago's Field Museum. You may gawk over the aging of Sharif, once a notorious playboy who lavished his money on pretty girls. But the show is well done and the first television attempt to comprehensively present the fact, fiction and questions surrounding the pyramid.

- President Carter delivers an energy address before a joint session of Congress at 8 p.m. that will be carried live by all three network-owned stations in Chicago.
- A CBS news special "Who's Ahead: The Debate Over Defense," compares the United States' and the Soviet Union's military arms strengths at 9 p.m. on Channel 2.

Buying an air conditioner?

There's one number you should know besides the price.

Before you choose an air conditioner, ask the dealer for its energy efficiency ratio. This number tells you the efficiency of a unit. An air conditioner with an EER number of 8 or above will be thrifty for you electrically.

The EER number is computed by dividing the BTUs by the watts. A 12,000-BTU unit that uses 1500 watts will rate an 8. If the EER doesn't appear on the tag or metal nameplate, use this simple formula yourself. It's a worthwhile exercise that can pay off in electric dollar savings over the long run.

Don't buy too much capacity.

Surprisingly, an air conditioner that's too big usually won't keep you as comfortable as a smaller unit.

So measure the space to be cooled before you go to the dealer. Also note any doors that might let cool air escape, or windows that might let direct sunlight in. The dealer will have charts to translate your notes into the right air conditioner selection.

And remember to keep the filter clean. Check your owner's manual to see if you should vacuum it or wash it. In either case, a good periodic cleaning will make your air conditioner more efficient, and save you money.

Another good way to save on your cooling costs is to get an automatic timer made especially for air conditioners. If you're going to be away from home for the day, you can set the timer to turn on the air conditioner an hour or so before you return in the evening. Your home will be more comfortable; your air conditioner will get most of the day off; and you'll save money on your electric bill.

It makes a lot of sense to buy an air conditioner that starts efficient and stays efficient. And saving energy always makes sense.

Sweathogs—kids with no dead ends

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Since the Our Gang comedies blossomed in silent films, bands of ragamuffin rapscallions have delighted American audiences in movies and on TV.

There were the Dead End Kids in movies who became the East Side Kids and Bowery Boys.

Television still plays the Our gang shorts under the title of "The Little Rascals." 'The Bowery Boys" are rerun until the sprocket holes wear out.

THE OUR GANG tots were captivating amateurs. Some of the Dead End Kids were pulled off New York streets to become instant stars.

Latest of the gang comedy successes is the scruffy bunch of "sweathogs" in the "Welcome Back, Kotter" television series.

Unlike their predecessors, they are educated, professional actors.

Their spiritual leader on screen is Gabe Kaplan, experienced nightclub comedian who plays the role of high school teacher to the nincompoop sweathogs.

The sweathogs — Robert Hegyes (Epstein), Lawrence Jacobs (Washington), Ron Palillo (Horshack) and John Travolta (Barbarino) — represent the lowest social, economic and intellectual strata in school

They are clearly on a par with the Dead End Kids as goof-offs, and somewhat more endearing in their own slobbering ways.

THE SWEATHOGS may escape the litany of misery — assaults, arrests, divorces and early deaths — that haunted many of the Our Gang and Dead End Kid members, who were unable to handle youthful fame and its subsequent flame out.

Hegyes, who plays the half-Jewish, half-Puerto Rican Juan Epstein in "Welcome Back, Kotter," thinks he and his costars are better prepared for the vicissitudes of stardom than the other gangs.

"In the beginning viewers thought we were four kids hauled off the streets, type cast and prompted in our lines," he said, laughing. "It's really a testimony to our acting abilities that we're so convincing.

"We've had about 30 years acting experience among us. But TV is such a powerful medium it convinces people they're watching real human beings, not actors.

"Ron Palillo and I are both college graduates. The only high school dropout is Travolta and he's been a professional actor for at least six years.

'..THE SECRET TO successful group or gang comedy is that every member has to have a distinct personality and appeal. Viewers have their favorite sweathogs for different reasons.

"Individually, the four of us haven't got much in common except we're young and we're actors.

"We're each on a different trip. Ron and Larry are both artists. Travolta is into music. And I'm a jock; I love tennis and golf.

"When the show started we were groping for an identity as a gang and for individuality in our roles. We thought of the Marx Brothers who took logical situations and turned them into chaos using four-beat comedy.

"James Komack, our producer, has a real feeling for casting. After he picked the four of us he was told the public wouldn't buy these tough, dumb, poor kids. He told the network, 'Trust me.' "

Hegyes, whose father is of Hungarian extraction and his mother Italian, was asked how he and the others proposed to break the sweathog image to build their careers once the series is off the air.

SWEATHOGS Arnold Horshack played by Ron Palillo (left), Freddie "Boom Boom" Washington played by Lawrence-Hilton Jacobs and Juan Epstein played by Robert Hegyes are pupils and pests of teacher Gabe Kotter in "Welcome Back, Kotter" Thursdays at 7 p.m. on Channel 7.

He was sitting in a patio perched above the swimming pool of his San Fernando Valley home. Hegyes closed his intelligent, dark eyes thoughtfully before replying.

"TELEVISION CHEWS up young actors and spits them out," he said. "We are all aware of that. The way to fight it is to put a lot of other irons in the fire, which is what we're doing.

"Travolta is cutting record albums and working in a movie. Jacobs and Palillo are appearing in other shows.

"Since starting this series I've done guest shots in Streets of San Francisco' and 'The Brady Bunch.' I've done variety shows, 'The Osmonds' and 'The Rich Little Show,' and a TV movie, 'Law and Order.'

"I'd intended to go on and get my masters degree from college. But I look on 'Kotter' as a fellowship where they're paying me to learn. I'm in the director's booth when I'm not acting.

"I'm learning the entire craft of television production, directing and writing. Does that sound like a Dead End Kid?"

Beers, cheers and tears

Mike Albrech, who managed Herbert Volberding's successful Des Plaines mayoral campaign, relaxes.

Voters in the Northwest suburbs opened their umbrellas and sloshed through rain Tuesday to make their mark in the quadrennial mayoral and village presidential elections. In other communities it was aldermen and trustees who were elected.

Voters with their "X," chose fresh-faced hopefuls and determined the fate of candidates for alderman, village trustee, park commissioner and library trustee.

And they determined the fate of their town for the next four years.

For some it meant a late night celebration, with beers and cheers flowing easily. Others went home quietly in defeat.

William Hein and his wife, Pat, celebrate his successful Wheeling mayoral campaign.

PERSONNEL
RECRUITER MID-TEENS

Where do I go from here? If you're asking yourself that question now after getting your degree and having 2 or 3 years in the personnel field, then you should consider this career opening. The opportunity is here with our rapidly growing north suburban Chicago, multi-plant, chemical specialty manufacturing firm boasting a phenomenal growth . . . we've more than doubled our size and sales since 1971. This growth is reflected in our Personnel Department with this newly created position.

Primarily, we're interested in your recruiting background since initially you'll be involved in recruiting scientific, professional and managerial people such as: engineers, chemists, accountants, sales representatives, etc., plus staff personnel. Ultimately, you'll have the opportunity to enlarge your professionalism by becoming involved in labor & employee relations and salaried compensation programs while gaining a genuine generalist background.

If you meet our specifications, you'll receive a competitive salary commensurate with your background and an outstanding benefit package along with an exceptional opportunity for personal and professional development with an exceptional company. For immediate consideration, send your resume complete with salary history and expectations, in confidence, to:

Ordinance No. 1131

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING SECTION 22A.801 and 22A.802 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE OF THE VILLAGE OF ELK GROVE VILLAGE THEREBY AMENDING THE RESTRICTIONS ON THE USE OF WATER FOR OUTDOOR PURPOSES

NOW, THERFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Elk Grove Village, Cook and DuPage Counties, Illinois, as follows:

Section 1: That Section 22A.801 of the Municipal Code of the Village of Elk Grove Village be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

22A.801. Restrictions On The Use Of Water For Outdoor Purposes.

All persons who reside or occupy premises in the Village or purchase water from the Village shall not use the water for sprinkling lawns, shrubs, trees and gardens; filling private swimming pools or washing vehicles (except in commercial establishments having approved and functioning water recycling facilities) with water distributed by the Village except as follows:

A. Residential properties may use water for any outdoor purpose as follows:

Saturdays from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at locations having odd numbered addresses.

Sundays from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at locations having even numbered addresses.

B. Industrial and commercial properties may use water for any outdoor purposes as follows:

Tuesdays from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at locations having odd numbered addresses.

Thursdays from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at locations having even numbered addresses.

C. Water may be used to establish newly installed or newly planted lawns having an area greater than 1,000 square feet upon issuance of a written permit by the Superintendent of Water and Sewer; said permit will be valid for fourteen (14) days and allow four (4) hours of water usage for the new lawn on each day the permit is valid. Permits may be renewed for a ten-day period. Applications may be secured from the Superintendent's Office at 666 Landmeier Road between 8:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. on Mondays through Fridays. Persons seeking permits for watering new lawns shall indicate the hours they prefer. The Superintendent is authorized to issue; to modify; to reject; or to revoke said permits.

D. Periods of Emergency. If in the opinion of the Superintendent of Water and Sewer an emergency exists to the extent that the Village's water production, storage or distribution system is unable to meet the need for water for indoor consumption or usage, public health and/or public safety purposes, the Superintendent is authorized to temporarily suspend or modify the foregoing sprinkling and outdoor usage of water regulations by giving notice in a newspaper having general circulation with the Village of such state of emergency and the conditions of temporary suspension or modification to be imposed. No individual state of emergency shall be declared for a period longer than seven (7) days, but a separate and subsequent state of emergency can be declared if emergency conditions are still in existence at the termination of any seven (7) day period.

Section 2: That Section 22A.802 of the Municipal Code of Elk Grove Village be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

22A.802. Penalty

Any person, firm or corporation who uses water or consents to the use of water other than as provided for above shall be fined not less than $25.00 nor more than $200.00. A separate offense shall be deemed committed on each day during, or on which a violation occurs or continues. Any person, firm or corporation who shall persist in violating the provisions of this Ordinance after a warning shall be subject to having his or its water service terminated for a period not to exceed forty-eight (48) hours, and payment of $10.00 to the Village for re-establishing water service.

Section 3: This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication to law as above provided.

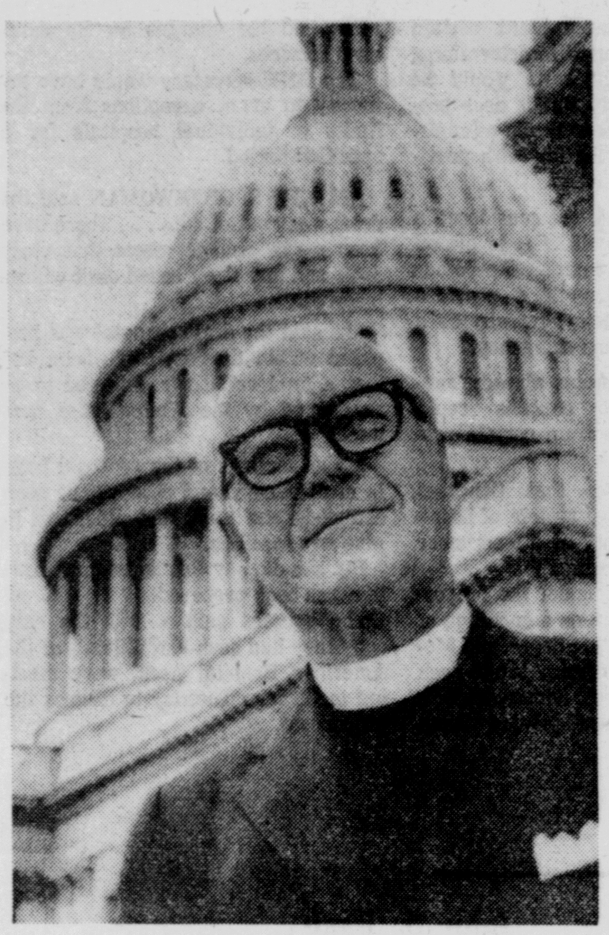
Women, men of dubious virtue part of Washington's wicked way



"THERE SEEMS TO BE an 'epidemic' of divorces in the Senate," says the chaplain, Dr. Edward Elson, left. Former Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and his wife, right, are married more than 40 years, however, and as Mrs. Mansfield says, are "very well suited."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even when it was a swampy little tidewater town, Washington had a reputation for easy morals. Jimmy Carter may find it easier to balance the federal budget than to banish sin in the federal city.

Washington, after all, is the city where the term "hooker" was invented and were a president once insisted that a tavernkeeper's daughter of dubious virtue be accepted in cabinet-level society.

It also is the place where a congressman once shot the district attorney in front of the White House for dallying with the lawmaker's wife and where prostitutes used to flock to the congressional galleries to wait for their patrons to finish tending to the public business.

NOW, DESPITE his campaign-time pledge in Playboy to cast no stones at the sexual preferences and living arrangements of others, the new president has called upon unmarried Washingtonians to give up "living in sin" and those already legally married to try to stay that way.

There is a lot of extra-marital sex and cohabitation without wedlock in Washington. Last year, a majority of the children born in the District of Columbia did not have married parents. The abortion and divorce rate is high and commercial sex is advertised thinly disguised as "health services" and "massage" in newspaper and telephone directory classified sections.

There certainly are cities where appetites of the flesh are more openly accepted or catered to than the national capital. Sophisticates regard New York as more permissive, Los Angeles as kinkier and New Orleans as more worldly. But hanky-panky in Washington gets special attention.

ONE REASON for this is that the principals in Washington's bedroom scandals frequently are well-known politicians who have put themselves forward at home as models of probity and rectitude. Americans relish the sight of hypocrites exposed and the mighty laid low.

There always is a lot of gossip in Washington about politicians and their sexual behavior.

Sometimes these stories make the front pages and have an impact on the Washington establishment, as when Wilbur Mills, then the holder of awesome power as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, got into a police scrape with the stripper Fanne Fox and when Elizabeth Ray announced she was employed as a secretary to work as a mistress for then chairman Wayne Hays of the House Administration Committee. The public careers of both men were ended as a result of the disclosures.

BUT FOR THE MOST part, these arrangements remain out of public print — partly because they cannot be substantiated and partly because many of them have no apparent effect on the performance of the public duties of the people involved.

This last is a judgment call, but Washington journalists generally do recognize that public officials here, like bank presidents, bus drivers and stenographers elsewhere, have a right to conduct their private lives as they see fit. However, when one of the principals "goes public," Washington reporters go after the story as avidly as any Hollywood scribe.

There has been some serious study of the apparent affinity between sex and politics.

ONE THEORY HOLDS that most politicians are approaching or well into middle age before they can get to Washington, and in an environment that requires long, irregular hours of work in close association with young and unattended aides, taboos fall easily.

Another is the Kissinger axiom: power is the ultimate aphrodisiac. It was the former Secretary of State's idea that the ability to move and shake events is far more sexually potent than attractive features, fine clothes and even fat bankrolls. Kissinger explained that is how a chubby, short-sighted, middleaged former college professor was able to get dates with Hollywood's most nubile starlets.

Finally, there is the ego factor. The common denominator of the political personality is heightened, often exaggerated, self esteem and assurance. Just as other performers attract "groupies," politicians also have their acolytes and some who are not even seeking entanglements find themselves under romantic siege.

ALICE ROOSEVELT Longworth, the ascerbic dowager queen of capital society, often is credited with the epigram: "Washingon is full of brilliant, attractive men who married young."

The cruel but often true translation of this is that men — and more lately women — who have made their mark in politics and government often find their spouses cannot adjust to the social and-or intellectual competition in Washington. This kind of incompatibility may be the death of as many political marriages as bed-hopping.

The other side of this coin is the rise of feminism. Many political wives are as or more talented than their husbands, and in the new atmosphere of liberation cannot reconcile themselves to the background role men in public life often expect their wives to accept.

LADYBIRD JOHNSON, for example, was the business brains of that family, and the wives in two recently announced political divorces — Mrs. Herman Talmadge of Georgia and, Mrs. Barry Goldwater Jr. of California — are well established in business ventures entirely separated from politics.

This also might be part of the explanation for the increased number of unmarried couples living together. All over the country, but especially in Washington, women with professional training and ambition increasingly can support themselves, and do not feel pressured into snagging a meal ticket.

Not since the late J. Edgar Hoover ruled the FBI has any government agency attempted to oversee the bedroom arrangements of federal employes, and it does not seem likely that Carter will go beyond rhetoric in championing matrimony.

IT IS TRUE that presidential aide Greg Schneiders, working directly under the gaze of the president-to-be for more than a year, married the woman he was sharing living quarters with. But Schneiders said Carter's personal influence rather than any implied official sanctions caused him and Marie Hartnett to mrry in January rather than April.

Whatever influence Carter may have, Washington probably still will be regarded by the rest of the country as a wicked town. It certainly has been up to now.

Way back in the 1820's, the capital was scandalized when President Andrew Jackson insisted that cabinet wives accept tavernkeeper's daughter Peggy O'Neale when she married Secretary of War Eaton. Peggy was a lady with a shady reputation, but Jackson bitterly remembering attacks on his own morals, insisted she was "chaste as a virgin."

WASHINGTON WAS a small town then, but it had diversions for 19th century swingers. Abraham Lincoln, serving his single term in congress in 1847-49, was reported to be outraged by the sight of squads of scarlet women waiting in the galleries for their customers to finish their official work on the House floor.

Only a few years later, the town was thrown into turmoil by the murder of U.S Atty. Phillip Barton Key, son of the author of the national anthem, by Rep. Daniel E. Sickles, D-N.Y. Sickles, although openly keeping a mistress himself, shot Key in Lafayette Square when he learned the lawyer was having an affair with the congressman's wife. Sickles was freed — the "unwritten law" was strong — and then outraged society by letting his wife return to his bed.

It was during the Civil War that the term "hooker" was born in Washington. Gen. "Fighting Joe" Hooker camped his Army division downtown, and quickly attracted a horde of camp followers who set up housekeeping in the area now occupied by several museums of the Smithsonian Institution.

When the army left, the bawdy houses remained. Until well into the 20th century, the red light district was known as "the Division" and its inhabitants were called "hookers."

Real Uncle Sam has day as town rewrites history

ARLINGTON, Mass. (UPI) — There was a real-life Uncle Sam, but he didn't have a long white beard, didn't wear red, white and blue and never posed for an Army recruiting poster.

He was Samuel Wilson, a fullfaced, beardless meat packer who made his fortune selling food to troops during the War of 1812 — hardly the tall, spare figure with the flowing white beard.

"He did carry a hat at times, but he was clean shaven and he didn't wear stars and stripes," says Larry Barton, who along with other members of the Jaycees, has been trying to set the historical record straight on Arlington's native son.

"WHAT WE'RE TRYING to do is get back to what he originally looked like," said Barton, 20. "We want to play down the commercialism we know as Uncle Sam."

The Jaycees, who have been working on the project for 10 years, spent $80,000 of Cincinnati philanthropist Frederick Hauck's money to dig through documents and compile a profile of the original Uncle Sam for a statue.

Wilson, one of 13 children, was born in Arlington in 1766. He saw Paul Revere pound past his window in 1775, warning Minutemen the British were coming, Barton said.

Arlington was the scene of one of the bloodier battles of the Revolutionary War.

As a man in his 30s, Barton said Wilson began a meat packing business in New York with his brother and landed a lucrative government contract to provide meat for the troops in New York and New Jersey.

THE STATUE OF Samuel Wilson was dedicated this week in Arlington, Mass. Instead of a thin, elderly man with flowing beard, the real Uncle Sam, Samuel Wilson, was a husky, beardless meat packer.

SERVICES TO PERSONS UNABLE TO PAY THEREFOR CERTIFICATION
HOLY FAMILY HOSPITAL
DES PLAINES, ILLINOIS
COOK COUNTY

The Holy Family Hospital has certified that it will not exclude any person from admission on the ground that such person is unable to pay for needed services, and that it will make available to each person so admitted services provided by the facility without charge or at a charge which does not exceed such person's ability to pay therefor, as determined in accordance with criteria established in the Illinois Medical Facilities Construction Plan.

This certification has been made pursuant to the requirements of the regulations of the Public Health Service, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, (42 CFR s 53.111), and the applicable provisions of the Illinois Medical Facilities Construction Plan. The Illinois Department of Public Health has, therefore, established the foregoing level of services as the level of uncompensated services to be made available by said facility in the period January 1, 1977 to December 31, 1977.

The level of services set out meets the presumptive compliance guideline of the Federal regulations.

Copies of the criteria used for identifying persons unable to pay for services may be obtained from the Illinois Department of Public Health.

The records and documents on the basis of which the above level of uncompensated services was established are available for public inspection at 535 West Jefferson, Springfield, Illinois between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. on regular business days.

Proposed law would slow down hospital cost hikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is circulating draft legislation to curb hospital costs which would exempt from controls any public hospitals, apparently including veterans' and Public Health Service facilities.

The draft calls for private hospital administrators to make public their annual wages and carries a provision for terminating a hospital's participation in Medicare or Medicaid.

The legislative outline, entitled Hospital Cost Containment Act of 1977, was prepared by the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare and is circulating among some private health organizations and congressional offices.

A copy was made available to UPI by a nongovernment source.

PRESIDENT CARTER proposed a clampdown on hospital costs in his budget for fiscal 1978, saying taxpayers could save $829 million during the first year if a 9 per cent ceiling was imposed on increases. These costs have been increasing in recent years at an annual rate of 15 per cent.

The proposal leaves blank certain percentages to be used in determining how much hospital costs would be allowed to increase. But it does provide insight into the way the administration is shaping the bill with provision that:

• An institution is not considered a hospital under the bill if it is owned by a state, county, municipal or other governmental unit or if it provides services to the public generally as a community institution or agency.

• Governors of states already having hospital cost controls could request exemptions from certain provisions of the bill.

The bill proposes that Congress create "a transitional system of hospital cost containment" as a forerunner to national health insurance.

Hospitals covered under the proposal would be required, as a condition of participation in the Medicare and Medicaid programs, to make public such information as the administrator's salary, average semi-private room rates and the charges for its most-used services.

The HEW secretary would have authority to grant exceptions from the limits to individual hospitals for a specified period.

AN HEW SPOKESWOMAN said the draft was "out of date . . . There have been major changes since that early draft and any story based on it will be incorrect."

She said the draft proposal was prepared within the last few weeks and that a final version is expected to be announced by the White House next week.

Major sections of the proposal have been withdrawn and others have been changed, she said, but declined to give any specifics.

But she did say this is the only draft that has been prepared.

The sources said it was the only copy they had seen and officials of the American Hospital Assn. were meeting in Chicago Tuesday to discuss the propoposal.

California plays long ball, rips first place Sox

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Joe Rudi, Danny Briggs and Bruce Bochte all slammed home runs as the Angels snapped a five-game White Sox winning streak here Tuesday night.

California climbed out of the American League West basement with an impressive 11-2 victory that was settled early as Sox pitching collapsed at the start of this long road trip.

Sox starter Bart Johnsonwas tagged for six runs in the first 3-2/3 innings, Silvio Martinez three more and Dave Hamilton two more as the Sox still managed to hold onto first place by a half game as Oakland lost.

Frank Tanana got the win for the Angels, his third of the season against no losses.

THE SOX jumped ahead in the second inning as Jim Spencer lined a 3-2 Tanana pitch into the right field seats for his first home run of the season.

But the Angels came right back with two runs in the bottom of the inning, although the damage could have been much worse as Sox starting pitcher Johnson worked his way out of a jam.

Rudi led off with a single, Bochte walked and Dave Chalk then loaded the bases with a bunt single. That brought up Briggs who tapped to Spencer at first. But Spencer was charged with an error on the play as a run scored.

WITH THE BASES still loaded, catcher Andy Etchebarren stroked a single deep into the right field corner to score the second Angel run, but Etchebarren was caught in a rundown between first and second for an out and no other runs scored on the play.

Johnson got Jerry Remy to fly out to left, walked Bobby Grich to load the bases, then worked the count to 3-2 to Bobby Bonds, the eighth man to bat in the inning, before getting Bonds to ground out, pitcher to first, to end the inning.

The Angels made it 3-1 in the third when Rudi singled, then scored all the way from first when a single to left by Bochte rolled past Jerry Hairston. But Bochete was thrown out trying for third.

THE ANGELS put the game out of reach when they batted around and chased Johnson to the showers with a five run outburst, capped by Rudi's three-run homer in the fourth.

With two runs in and the score 5-1, Johnson gave way to Martinez, who walked Don Baylor then grooved one to Rudi. Six of the Angel runs were charged to Johnson who gave up eight hits, walked three and struck out only one in 3-2/3 innings of work.

ARLINGTON SENIOR Paul Wei, of the Illinois' finest players, smacks a shot in tennis competition. The Cardinals will travel to Buffalo Grove for a dual meet today at 4:30 p.m. and will also host their own invitational Saturday, drawing the finest tennis teams from the state for the annual get-together. (Photy by Dave Tonge)

No singing in the rain; Cubs stumble

by JEFF NORDLUND

A week ago the sun was shining, and the Cubs owned a four-game winning streak. The bouyant optimism of the new season was strong.

Tuesday at Wrigley Field, though, the Cubs looked as dreary as the weather in losing their fourth straight, 7-5 to Philadelphia.

Pint-sized Ted Sizemore and Larry Bowa provided the long ball for the Phillies, who had been having troubles of their own before arriving in Chicago Monday. Sizemore tripled in two runs in the Phillies' big five-run third inning, and Bowa followed an inning later with a home run.

Cub starter Mike Krukow failed to finish the third inning, doing little to reduce his ERA (now a hefty 12.60). The loss was his first major league decision.

JERRY MORALES was one of two bright spots in the Cubs' performance, collecting two doubles, a single and four RBIs. Bill Buckner was the other, returning to action after nursing a sore ankle all spring and ripping a pinch-hit single in the Cubs' two-run seventh inning.

Rain threatened to fall all game, eventually halting the ninth inning for 30 minutes. For the Cubs, that was five runs too late.

"I didn't get the silent treatment in the dugout after the home run," Bowa, cast in the unfamiliar role of power hitter, said afterward. "That's what they did when I hit one in San Francisco a few years ago. I remember that one, because Willie Montanez fainted after I hit it."

Bowa should remember all his home runs, since Tuesday's belt into the first row of the right field bleachers off reliever Steve Renko was only the fifth of his career.

THE KEY BLOW of the game was Sizemore's triple, a sinking line drive in front of right-fielder Bobby Murcer who tried for the shoestring catch. The ball skipped under his glove and rolled all the way to the wall, allowing the third and fourth runs of the five-run third inning to score.

"I hit the ball pretty well — too well I thought," Sizemore said. "I thought Murcer was going to catch it."

The three-bagger sent Krukow to the showers to bring on Renko, the first of three relievers which included Willie Hernandez and Bruce Sutter.

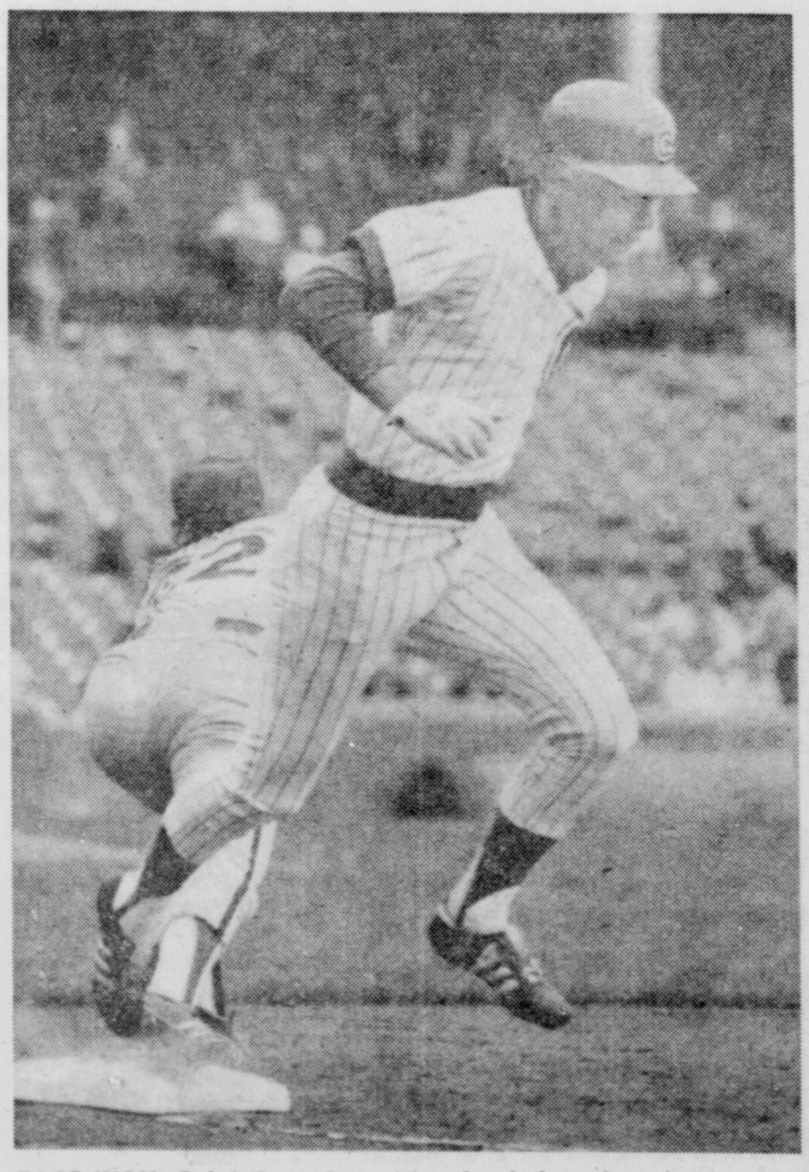
Phillie starter Larry Christensen stayed just long enough to collect his first win of the season against one loss. He was relieved in the sixth inning after throwing over 100 pitches, giving up one spots in the first and third and two more runs in the sixth.

GENE GARBER closed out the Cubs' sixth-inning rally, highlighted by Morales' two-run double, and limited them to one more run in the eighth to get a save.

"I think Christensen was throwing better the last couple innings," Phillie skipper Danny Ozark said. "Earlier in the game, he didn't look like the pitcher we had seen this spring.

"He was rushing himself in the early innings," Ozark, who piloted Philadelphia to the Eastern Division title last year, explained. "He changed his style from last year, and he was getting lazy by not lifting his leg high enough."

The four-game skid has taken the Cubs from a 4-2 record to 4-6, while squaring the season series with Philadelphia at 2-2. Philadelphia also moved within half a game of the Cubs with a 3-6 mark. The teams conclude the three-game series today.



RACE WON. Cubs' Greg Gross wins the dash to first during action Tuesday in Wrigley Field. Gross reached on an error by Phillies' third baseman Mike Schmidt. Making the stretch is first baseman Dane Iorg. Philadelphia won, 7-5.

West prepares for third prep gymnastics feature

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Eleven of the best high school gymnasts in the United States, as well as Olympic medalist Peter Kormann, will be the attractions Saturday, April 23 when Maine West High School hosts the Third National High School Gymnastics All-Around Invitational.

Tickets for the 7:15 p.m. extravaganza will be $4.00 at the door or $3.00 in advance in the Maine West Bookstore.

The meet, which drew capacity crowds the first two years, will be televised by NBC-TV and former state all-around champion Bart Conner will handle the color commentary.

HIGHLIGHTS OF the meet will be broadcast on NBC-Channel 5 Saturday, April 30 from noon to 1 p.m.

Kormann, from Southern Connecticut University, was a 1976 Olympic medal winner in floor exercise and is the first U.S. medalist in men's gymnastics in over 40 years. He will give an exhibition Saturday.

The purpose of the meet, as in the past, is not to determine the best high school gymnast but rather to place them in a setting where each gets to know the other gymnasts as well as display their considerable talent.

Representing Illinois will be 1977 state all-around champion Troy Chovan of Oak Park, Barry Cook of Niles North, Dan Smith of Proviso West and Doug Smidl of Palatine Fremd.

OTHER GYMNASTS include Carl Antoniolli of Brentwood, N.Y., Phil Cahoy of Omaha, Neb., Tom Hardin of Kent, Wash., Jim Hartung of Omaha, Neb., Percy Price, Jr., of Reading, Pa., Peter Stout of Miami Shores, Fla. and Scot Wilce of Lexington, Ky.

The four gymnasts from Illinois ranked first through fourth in the state all-around competition last month.

The gymnastics talent of the rest of the field is evident in their accomplishments.

Carl Antoniolli — A 17-year-old senior, Antoniolli is not affiliated with a high school team but placed third in the 1976 Farmingdale (NY.) Elite Level Open in all-around and has hopes of becoming only the fourth gymnast to qualify for the USGF Elite Level while in high school.

Phil Cahoy — This 15-year-old sophomore toured South Africa with the USGF Delegation and was second in the Nebraska state all-around in 1976.

Tom Hardin — This heady (3.7 grade point average) senior was the 1975 Washington state all-around champion and made All-American on vaulting in 1976 as well as winning an award for his dedication.

James Hartung — A 16-year-old junior, Hartung also toured South Africa, won the USGF Junior Olympic All-Around championship and was the 1975 Nebraska all-around champion.

Percy Price — Price also toured South Africa, took part in the USGF Development Camp in 1976 and placed second in the Pennsylvania all-around competition in 1975.

Peter Stout — This 15-year-old sophomore from Miami Shores was 1976 USGF Junior Olympic champion in free ex and vaulting and finished third in all-around.

Scott Wilce — The fourth gymnast in the NHSGAAI to tour South Africa, Wilce took a first in vaulting and fifth in all-around during the trip.

Ten of the 11 gymnasts competing are Honor students and list hobbies ranging from fishing to collecting old guns.

Sid Drain, meet director and creator of the NHSGAAI format, will treat the 11 gymnasts to a trip to Old Chicago.

Sting to honor youth Saturday

The Chicago Sting will celebrate the growth of soccer among Chicago area youngsters with Youth Soccer Day on Saturday.

That's the day the Sting plays its North American Soccer League home opener at Soldier Field, 2:00 p.m., against the 1976 NASL champion Toronto Metros.

Youth Day will be held in conjunction with the Illinois Youth Soccer Assn., but young soccer players from suburban Indiana and Wisconsin are also invited. All youngsters attending the game in uniofrm will be admitted to the Sting-Toronto game free of charge.

"THE YOUNGSTERS in uniform will take part in a huge pre-game parade,'' said Sting Vice-President George Fishwick. "The youth team players and two coaches or supervisors per team will be admitted free. We're expecting hundreds of teams to show up, not only in uniform, but with whatever team flags or banners they can bring."

"The pre-game parade will give the youngsters a chance to come down on the field and show the fans the wealth and depth of young soccer talent in Chicagoland. It should be an exciting, colorful spectacle that will help the Sting open its home season in style."

Robinson pinch homer keys Baltimore win

The old Brook came on like Niagara Tuesday night.

Brooks Robinson, 39-years-old and still flowing, slammed a dramatic three-run pinch hit homer in the tenth inning to give the Baltimore Orioles their fourth straight victory over the Cleveland Indians, 6-5.

Elsewhere around the American League Tuesday Boston bombarded Detroit, Kansas City blitzed Minnesota, Milwaukee edged Oakland and the best team money can buy — the New York Yankees — continued to play like a thrift shop reject.

ROBINSON'S 268th career homer came off losing reliever Dave LaRoche after Ken Singleton had singled, Doug DeCinces walked and Lee May had an RBI single. It was Robinson's third at-bat of the season.

Dyar Milleg, who pitched two-thirds of an inning of relief, was the winner.

Frank Duffy, batting just .059 entering the game, tripled across the first of three Cleveland runs in the top of the 10th to give the Indians a 5-2 lead. Larvell Blanks later singled home Duffy, and Rico Carty's single accounted for the Indians' third run of the inning.

RICK MILLER celebrated his 29th birthday Tuesday night by driving home three runs with three hits and scoring twice, while Rick Burleson added three hits and two RBIs in a 17-hit Boston attack which provided the Red Sox with an 11-3 victory over the Tigers.

Miller brought in Boston's fourth and winning run in a six-run second inning with a double that chased Tiger starter and loser Ray Bare, now 0-2. Burleson greeted reliever Jim Crawford with a two-run homer to cap the inning. Butch Hobson also doubled home two runs in the inning.

L I G H T-HITTING Frank White homered and doubled to drive in three runs during a seven-run fifth inning to lead the Royals to an 11-3 rout of the Twins behind the seven-hit pitching of Jim Colborn.

White, a lifetime .232 hitter batting just .167 going into the game, led off the fifth with his first homer of the year. Then after the Royals batted around, he drove in the final two runs of the inning with a double down the leftfield line. White also singled to drive in a run and scored another during a three-run third inning outburst by the Royals.

DAN THOMAS tripled home the tying run then scored the winner when he kicked the ball out of the hands of Oakland catcher Manny Sanguillen in the ninth inning to give the Brewers a 5-4 victory over the A's.

A pair of two-run homers by Earl Williams and pinch-hitter Rich McKinney in the eighth inning gave the A's a 4-3 lead, but Milwaukee tied the score in the ninth on a leadoff double by Jamie Quirk and a one-out pinch-hit triple by Thomas.

ROOKIE left-hander Jerry Garvin scattered eight hits for his third triumph and the Toronto Blue Jays, aided by a pair of errors by catcher Thurman Munson and two run-scoring hits by Otto Velez, defeated New York 8-3 Tuesday in a game played under protest by Yankee manager Billy Martin.

It was the expansion Blue Jays' second straight triumph over the Yankees, who suffered their fifth straight defeat and eighth in 10 games.

Mets knock Cardinals from East lead, 5-2

A sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Ed Kranepool broke a 2-2 sixth inning tie Tuesday night and sent the New York Mets off to a 5-2 victory over St. Louis, knocking the Cardinals out of first place in the National League East.

Kranepool's fly drove in pinch-runner John Milner, who entered the game after Joe Torre walked. Milner was sacrificed to second base by Roy Staiger and went to third on John Stearns' single that knocked out starter and loser Pete Falcone, now 0-2.

The Mets added a run in the seventh when shortstop Garry Templeton committed a two-base throwing error on Felix Millan's ground ball and Milner followed with a single. New York got another run in the eighth on Stearns' single, Buddy Phillips' double and winning pitcher Jerry Koosman's sacrifice fly.

The Mets scored their first two runs in the fifth on a single by Lee Mazzilli, a double by Millan and a single by Mike Vail.

WARREN CROMARTIE hit a bases loaded triple in the sixth inning to highlight a five-run uprising that carried the Montreal Expos to a 6-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates behind the five-hit pitching of Don Stanhouse and into first place.

Stanhouse led off the sixth with a single and Dave Cash followed with another single. Ellis Valentine hit into a fielder's choice, but Tony Perez singled for this third hit of the game to score Cash and knock out Pirates' starter Larry Demery.

Larry Parrish was intentionally aalked and Cromartie followed with a triple off the center-field wall, making the score 4-0. Cromartie scored on Gary Carter's single and Montreal added another run in the eighth inning on a home run by Valentine.

GARY MATTHEWS and Rowland Office homered in support of the five-hit, 10-strikeout pitching of Dick Ruthven to give the Atlanta Braves a 4-1 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Matthews' homer, a two-run drive in the fourth inning, was his first as a Brave. Office's homer, a solo shot in the third, was also his first of the season.

Ruthven had a little trouble early, but settled down to retire 24 of the last 28 men he faced. At one stretch, he struck out five out of eight batters. It was Ruthven's third victory without a loss.

The Padres' run, which was unearned, came in the third, when Jerry Turner led off with a single, raced to third base on one of two errors in the game by Ruthven, and scored on an infield out.

The Braves also only had five hits off starter and loser Dave Freisleben, who is now 0-3. Atlanta's other run came in the second when Jeff Burroughs led off with a double, moved up on a wild pitch and came across during a double play.

VETERAN Willie McCovey, with a sixth-inning single, drove home Bill Madlock and Darrell Evans to provide the San Francisco Giants with a 7-4 victory over the Houston Astros.

Starter and winner Jim Barr, 2-1, allowed all four Houston runs and 11 hits prior to being relieved by Gary Lavelle in the eighth. Lavelle earned his first save of the season.

The Giants scored their first four runs off satarter Joaquin Andujar and then collected the sixth-inning tallies off rookie reliever Floyd Bannister, giving him his first major league loss in his initial big league appearance. San Frencisco added an insurance run in the ninth.

Two of the Astros' runs came as a result of a three-stolen base performance by Houston third baseman Enos Cabell, the second time this year he has accomplished the feat.

Youth rally At Conant High

Bethel Baptist Church of Schaumburg will sponsor a Youth Rally on Saturday night at Conant High School featuring an exhibition wrestling match put on by former Munich Olympic gold medalist Ben Peterson.

Peterson, of Comstock, Wis., will take on Conant coach Grant Grubaugh in an exhibition slate that will also include high school wrestlers from Conant, Schaumburg and Rolling Meadows High Schools.

HIGH FLYER RON Warring of Hoffman Estates could have used a pair of wings on this high jump attempt in a dual meet at Hawks' track. The Hoffman senior managed to get his entire 6-foot-6 frame over 5-8 to take second place in the meet. (Photo by Mike Seeling)

Canada fishing trip meeting scheduled

Forest View coach Dave Theesfeld has announced that he is again organizing a Canada fishing trip for high school-age boys. An introductory meeting will be held Thursday night in the library at Forest View High School at 7:30.

This year's popular excursion will run from June 18-27 at Black Bear Lodge in Red Lake, Ont. The cost, per individual, is $200 and includes everything but meals to and from the lodge.

Theesfeld is also recruiting adults as relief drivers and chaperones on the trip.

Court House adds new club manager

Jeff Oslance, a 22-year-old native of Milwaukee, has been named manager of The Court House racquetball club in Schaumburg. An active sports enthusiast, Oslance's interests also include playing the trombone in jam sessions with rock groups and jazz bands.

The Schaumburg Court House is one of six in a group either built or under construction in the Chicago area including one in operation in Arlington Heights.

Poor Fred Merkle . . . he deserves better

Byline report

Art Mugalian

Merkle had just singled in the ninth inning, sending the potential winning run to third with two out. When Al Bridwell drove a single to center field, the run scored and the Giants appeared to be 2-1 victors over the Cubs.

Merkle knew the way to second base. It was due-north about 90 feet away. He had made the journey many times in the past. But, who presumes to know what the rookie was thinking?

MAYBE HE WAS thinking about a hot shower. Maybe he wanted to avoid the onrush of Polo Grounds autograph seekers. (The next day they would be willing to shoot Merkle.)

Whatever, Merkle made a beeline to the clubhouse. He neglected to touch second base.

Cub second baseman Johnny Evers (of Tinker to Evers to Chance fame) called for the ball and stepped on second claiming that the force on Merkle nullified the run. After much argument, the umpires backed Evers.

Darkness was drawing nigh, as it did in those days, and the crowd was already milling across the field, so the men in blue called the game a tie. When the season ended with the Giants and Cubs deadlocked, a replay of the tie game was necessary and the Cubs won it.

NEEDLESS TO SAY, Merkle sat on the bench in that one.

What Merkle did was common during those early years of baseball. Maybe that's why they called it the Dead Ball Era.

Anyway, the rule requiring the runner to advance to second on a game-winning hit was never enforced. Until Merkle, that is.

Poor Fred. He was the goat and Giant fans never forgot it. Later, when Merkle played for the Cubs, the fans continued to torment him.

He was just a victim of sad happenstance. He was just a schnook.

BUT LEGEND HAS made Merkle a bum, a villain, or worse. His friends, if any survive, are keeping it a secret.

Who will now come to Fred Merkle's defense? Who will say, "Fred, all is forgiven."? Who will say, "You may not have touched second, Fred, but we love you anyway."?

Who will say, "Fred, don't sweat it."?

Now is the time to come forth and, with all the forgiveness in our frail, human hearts, tell this man that missing second base wasn't the worst thing he could have done.

MERKLE WON'T be able to take full advantage of his pardon, obviously. But somewhere — perhaps on the Great Basepath in the Sky — Fred Merkle will smile and think, "Ah, finally they forgive me."

Rest in peace, Fred. It was still a bonehead play.

Now is the time to pardon Fred Merkle.

They are pardoning everybody else these days, from ex-Presidents to the doctor who treated John Wilkes Booth's broken leg. So if you made a mistake somewhere in your deep, dark past now is the time to seek compensation.

If your name is Mud or Nixon, chances are good you're guilty of something that warrants a pardon. If your family knows how to pull strings or if your successor is a president, the pardon will come gift-wrapped.

IF YOUR NAME is Merkle, however, there may not be anybody to go to bat for you.

Dr. Mudd unwittingly aided an assassin and served the beter part of a life sentence for his transgression. He also lent his name to the American Idiom.

Now they are trying to tell us that even if a man's name is Mudd, his name is no longer mud.

Everoyne has an idea what Nixon did to deserve his pardon. But few people would begrudge him his due. Nixon is still alive (isn't he?) and he can enjoy the freedom a pardon can bring — like the freedom to stay cooped up at San Clemente all day.

NOBODY, HOWEVER, deserves to be pardoned more than Fred Merkle, the man who missed second base. Merkle didn't topple a government, he didn't kill anybody, he didn't even drop a fly ball with the bases loaded.

But Merkle cost his team the pennant just the same and he did it by simply forgetting to touch second base.

"Don't forget to touch second, Fred," his friends and enemies would remind him years after the notorious incident, which took place during the last week of the 1908 season.

It was that long ago and still they remember. Now is the time to heal the wound that time has let fester.

HIS MISTAKE drove Merkle to his grave, where he has been lying in semi-disgrace since 1956. He lived a fruitful life and even managed to make a moderate success of his baseball career, but Fred admitted long afterward that he never really enjoyed the game after 1908.

And he stil hasn't touched second.

Everywhere he went, Merkle was hounded by insensitive people wanting to know why he did it, why he pulled the bonehead play of the century that deprived the Giants of the pennant and gave it to the grateful Chicago Cubs.

Decades later, legions of Merkle antagonists, some who hadn't even been born in 1908, came to see the man in his final days to ask him: WHY?

Merkle, to his eternal credit, always tried to answer. But his explanations were hollow, more like excuses than solid reasons. Even he didn't know why.

HOW DID IT happen? How did Fred Merkle, then just a 19-year-old rookie, pull off the all-time classic "rock"?

Kupchak scores 32, Bullets win opener

HOUSTON — Rookie Mitch Kupchak scored a career high 32 points Tuesday night to lead the Washington Bullets to a 111-101 come-from-behind victory over the Houston Rockets in the opener of their NBA quarter-final playoff series.

Kupchak, who averaged 10.4 points a game during the regular season, scored 13 of his points in the third quarter when the Bullets moved ahead to stay. Washington had rallied from an 18-point deficit in the first half.

The second game of the best-of-7 series will be played here Thursday night.

Kupchak had 16 rebounds and Elvin Hayes 14 as the Bullets dominated the boards 47-34. Hayes added 22 points for the Bullets and Phil Chenier had 20.

Mike Newlin was the Rockets high scorer with 24 points, 14 of them in the final period. Rudy Tomjanovich added 19 for the Rockets.

Flyers win; Kings topple Bruins

The Philadelphia Flyers and Los Angeles Kings skated to victories Tuesday night in Stanley Cup quarter-final play.

Reggie Leach scored two goals to give the Philadelphia Flyers a 2-0 win over the stubborn Toronto Maple Leafs and a 3-2 advantage.

Leach, whose dramatic goal in sudden death overtime Sunday tied the series at two games apiece, scored his first goal at 14:12 of the first period after taking a pass across the crease from Orest Kindrachuk and poking it past Leaf goalie Mike Palmateer.

Then in the third period, with the Leafs putting the pressure on the Flyers, Leach ended the second of two successive scrambles in front of the net as he slid a shot in while sprawled on the ice.

Bob Murdoch was credited with an early third period goal that glanced off the skate of Boston defenseman Brad Park Tuesday night to give Los Angeles a 3-1 win over the Bruins and keep the Kings alive.

Los Angeles, now trailing the best-of-seven series three games to two, hosts the Bruins Thursday night in game No. 6.

Mike Murphy added an empty net goal with one second to play for the final margin.

NBA sets up draft; Bulls No. 13

NEW YORK — The National Basketball Assn. has determined the order teams which finished with the same records will choose in the collegiate draft by using the tying teams' records against each other.

As a result, Buffalo will draft ahead of Milwaukee, Houston in front of Portland and Philadelphia ahead of Denver.

SEATTLE, KANSAS City and the New York Knicks finished in a three-way tie, with Seattle compiling the best record against its two opponents.

In the four-way tie among Boston, Chicago, Detroit and San Antonio, Boston has the edge (8-4), followed by Chicago (7-5), Detroit (5-6) and San Antonio (3-8).

The final draft order, disregarding trades, is: 1, New York Nets; 2, Buffalo; 3, Milwaukee; 4, Atlanta; 5, Phoenix; 6, New Orleans; 7, Indiana. 8, Seattle; 9, Kansas City, 10, New York Knicks; 11, Cleveland; 12, Boston; 13, Chicago; 14, Detroit; 15, San Antonio; 16, Golden State; 17, Washington; 18, Houston; 19, Portland; 20, Philadelphia; 21, Denver; 22, Los Angeles.

In the first round, Milwaukee, winner of the coin toss, will select first and the loser, Kansas City, which received the Nets' choice in a trade, will select second.

49ers name Ken Meyer head coach

SAN FRANCISCO — Ken Meyer, former 49ers assistant and for the past four seasons offensive coordinator of the Los Angeles Rams, Tuesday was named San Francisco's head coach.

Announcement of Meyer's appointment was made at a news conference by Edward J. DeBartolo, Jr., the club's new owner. Monetary terms of Meyer's contract were not revealed but he agreed to a three-year pact.

"We are pleased that Mr. Meyer has agreed to be our coach," said DeBartolo, who at 30 is 21 years younger than his coach.

Classic clash at Striking Lanes

Women's champs in showdown

Striking Lanes clinched the second-half championship of the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League before stepping onto its home alleys for a position round.

The Striking quintet held an insurmountable 18-point bulge over runnerup opponent Ten Pin Bowl and an automatic date in the season rolloff against first-half champ Petterson Safety Service.

But even though the position night was deemed meaningless, Ten Pin Bowl buried Striking Lanes, 7-0. That's no frame of mind for Striking to carry into the crucial playoffs Saturday at Striking Lanes.

Ten Pin cruised to the lopsided decision even with two team members absent. Betty Peterman carried the torch for Ten Pin with 580 series and 222 game. Joan Plywack chimed in with 515 for the winners.

Striking notched the steady efforts of Lu Schoenberger who nailed 579-212 and Bette Brelle who contributed 546-217.

Petterson meanwhile, tuned for the showdown by trimming L-Tran Engineering, 5-2, and would appear to have an edge of momentum upon entering the playoffs.

Bobbie Kostelny led Petterson's charge with 585-203 but support came from Carol Sander's 540 and Winnie Lohse's even 500. L-Tran salvaged the final game of the match as Isobel Kosi fired 567-213, Vi Douglas 508 and Marlis Pleickhardt 500.

In other action, Ziebart Rustproofing of Des Plaines leaned on Tower Cleaners, 7-0, and Thunderbird Country Club topped Mason Shoes, 5-2.

Ziebart rallied around the 521 by Carol Anderson and 526-211 by Pat Myslinski in taming Tower Cleaners which replied with Pam Lizak's 526 and Betty Parkhurst's 519.

Thunderbird won by game margins of one pin and 23 pins while losing by 18 in dramatic fashion to Mason Shoes. The total series was a mere six-pin difference.

T-Bird rode the 547-209 of Jean Ladd, 546 by Dee Kachelmuss and 544 by Mary Yurs to the triumph while Mason notched Irma Faust's 532 and Peggy Wales' 518.

The championship rolloff will be held Saturday at Striking Lanes at 3 p.m.

Formco Metal Products on verge of clinching title

by DON CHRISTENSEN

Buffalo Grove's Striker Lanes was found to be right down Oost Produce's alley as it easily out-distanced the rest of the league in Paddock Classic Traveling action.

After a slow start Oost Produce exploded for games of 1049 and 1074 for their league leading total of 3003. Oost Produce had trouble the first game but still managed to edge Des Plaines Ace Hardware, 880 to 866.

Oost found the line the second game as four men shot over 200, led by Terry Caldwell's 226 and Glen Chesser's 221.

In the ats game, Darwin Scrzynecki's 244 and Glen Chesser's 248 ignited Oost to a big 1074 win over Des Plaines Ace Hardware.

Glen Chesser's 648, high for the night, and Darwin Scrzynecki's 614 were the big totals in this match.

Formco Metal Products all but wrapped up the second half championship as they beat Uncle Andy's Cow Palace in all three games and picked up 20 of 25 points in the process.

The first game went to Formco 893 to 868 despite Mike Coleantonio's 224 for Uncle Andy's. Although Formco Metal took four individual points the second game they managed only a 24 pin triumph over Uncle Andy's 895 to 871.

Fred Hansen personally took matters into his own hands the last game when he rolled a 246 and formco easily won 982 to 859. Hansen's total of 617 led the match. Formco Metal needs two points to lock up the second half.

Weber's Bar-B-Que Kettles, with consistent shooting took two out of three games from Beverly Lanes. Weber's Kettles needed a big night against Beverly Lanes, but managed just 14 points from the first half champs.

Weber's took the first game when John Surges and Joe Simonis bowled 226 and 211 respectively. The margin went easily to Weber's 962 to 873.

Things tightened up the second game with Weber's still prevailing 896 to 873. In the last game, which Weber's Kettles needed desperately, Beverly Lanes ran away when Bob Glaser and Les Zikes suddenly found their range and paced a big 1017 to 926 victory.

Weber's Kettles now faces the insurmountable task of taking 24 of 25 points from Formco to win the second half.

Mr. Norm's Grand Spaulding Dodge won two of three games and 15 points from Dick McFee y Pontiac on games of 855, 958 and 946 for 2759 while Dick McFeely totaled 875, 919 and 817 for 2611.

Rich Wagner shot 628 for Grand Spaulding Dodge with assistance from teammate Jerry Belluzzi's even 600.

There will be no bowling Saturday due to several tournament commitments for some of the teams. Therefore the last night of scheduled bowling will be at Hoffman Lanes on April 30 with the following schedule:

Formco Meta Products vs Weber's Kettles, Oost Produce vs Beverly Lanes, Grand Spaulding Dodge vs Dick McFeely Pontiac and Des Plaines Ace Hardware vs Uncle Andy's Cow Palace.

Standings:

Formco Metal Products vs Weber's ber's Kettles 216, Oost Produce 205.5, Beverly Lanes 203, Grand Spaulding Dodge 185, Dick McFeely Pontiac 165.5, Des Plaines Ace Hardware 159, Uncle Andy's Cow Palace 128.

Finesse proves tactless

"Why did you try the heart finesse at trick one?" growled North. "It wasn't for the reason that it was there or was it?"

South had no answer. In fact he didn't try to answer. Instead he sputtered: "Lucky players bid and make a slam with these cards. I lose three finesses and get set at five. I guess backgammon is my game."

We don't approve of South's slighting reference to backgammon. We approve even less of his play.

There is a time to finesse and a time not to. Once South lost that heart finesse and East was unkind enough to shift to a diamond, South's contract had disappeared into thin air. He was sure to lose three tricks with all three kings misplaced.

Six is a reasonable contract with the North-South cards and if South had been in six we would feel sorry for him, but South had stopped at five.

Forgetting about such things as 8-0 heart breaks, there was no need for South to try the heart finesse. He could rise with the ace of hearts, draw trumps, lose the club finesse and then discard his queen of diamonds on a good club.

Ask Andy

Natural gas formed from dead fossils

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Donna Frazzin, 10, of Youngstown, Ohio, for her question:

WHAT IS NATURAL GAS?

Natural gas is one of the most important things you can imagine. We use it for heating many of our homes. Industry depends on it for just about everything that is produced in our factories — all the way from the making of cloth and plastics to all types of metal products. And, as everybody knows, we are now faced with a shortage. We must use it wisely.

Natural gas is the energy of the sun that has been stored in the ground for a long time. It is found where we obtain petroleum. Gas and oil were made many millions of years ago when dead plants and animals were buried under rock during the time when great changes were being made in the earth's surface.

Decaying bodies became gas and oil through a slow chemical change. Rock in layers has held the gas and oil in pools or thick beds of sand.

Natural gas is found in the United States, Canada and many other parts of the world. It is lighter than air and has no color or odor. It is mostly methane, which means that one atom of carbon is combined with four atoms of hydrogen. When methane burns, it combines with the oxygen of the air to give off heat. In burning, it forms two other odorless and colorless gases, carbon dioxide and water vapor.

The first American natural gas well was drilled in Fredonia, N.Y., in 1821. In 1859 Edwin L, Drake drilled an oil well in Titusville, Pa., and the rush was on. Lots of natural gas was found with the oil, but it took a number of years before men learned how to use it well.

About 1920 the largest fields of natural gas were discovered in the Monroe field in Louisiana, the Panhandle in Texas and the Hugoton in Kansas. Most of the natural gas of the United States is in Texas and the nearby states along the Gulf Coast. Western Canada also has large natural gas fields, especially in the Turner Valley of Alberta.

Natural gas is also found in the Middle East, South America and Mexico, but there is none in the British Isles. In Europe, gas must be manufactured from coal and oil.

Pipes are used to move natural gas from the fields to distant cities. Strong pipes that can hold high pressures were developed by the steel men about 1930 that made it possible to move natural gas from Texas to the northern Midwest.

First pipelines were laid between 1870 and 1880 but were only a few inches in diameter and only a few miles long.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Nelveeta Lytle, 15, of Winston-Salem, N.C., for her question:

WHY ARE SNAILS PUT INTO AQUARIUMS?

Snails found in aquariums are the type you also find in ponds. They are very helpful because they eat the minute green plants that would otherwise form a film on the glass. They are very much like tiny vacuum cleaners and are used to keep aquariums clean.

Limy shells cover the snails and you'll notice they form into spiral coils. In some snails the coil twists to the left and in others to the right. Both the left and right coils may be found among snails of the same species.

Relatives of the aquarium snails are eaten by many persons. Called the periwinkle, the small edible snails are popular in Europe and along the Atlantic Coast of North America.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Merit Sparks Low Tar Boom!

'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco seen as major factor in unprecedented smoker move to low tar.

Since its introduction, MERIT has become one of the most popular new cigarettes in twenty years.

A popularity largely responsible for a significant growth in low tar smoking.

The reason: 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco that delivers extra flavor without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

The kind of flavor smokers can switch to—and stick with.

Here are the taste-test results which show why smokers are switching to MERIT. If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Tests Prove Taste

MERIT and MERIT 100's were both tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes. The results proved conclusively that 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco does boost taste without the usual increase in tar.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar! Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

And you can taste it.
